Castle Heir Goes Broke

Marilyn Mental Patient

NEW YORK (AP)—The Daily News says screen beauty Marilyn Monroe has been undergoing treatment for two months at Payne Whitney psychiatric clinic. Other reports say she was admitted to a hospital this week.

The newspaper says her doctor reported she is making good progress from a "near collapse" that followed her breakup with playwright Arthur Miller.

ROBERT H. FERGUSSON-POLLOK
... all gone

Can't Pay Judgment Over Cats

DUNCAN — A Cowichan man who 10 years ago owned an 80-room Scottish castle and a six-figure fortune said last night he may seek to have himself declared a bankrupt.

Latest blow to the fortunes of Robert H. Fergusson-Pollok came yesterday in the form of a Vancouver court order assessing him $9,440 to replace a Salt Spring Island home rendered uninhabitable during his tenancy by 35 cats and 60 birds.

ONCE WEALTHY

A few days earlier, the once-wealthy descendant of Scottish nobles told a reporter, a finance company repossessed his automobile.

Yesterday the man who only a few years ago was driving a plush limousine and investing some $30,000 in the now-defunct professional baseball team in Victoria went out and bought another car—this time for $350.

FILTH, OLOP

Before handing down the assessment Chief Justice Sherwood Lett was told the filth and odor left by the cats and birds in the Salt Spring home would force the owner, New Westminster RCMP Staff Sergeant Geoffrey Emaley, to destroy the house and furnishings.

Fergusson-Pollok was ordered to pay $8,000 for the house and $1,440 for the ruined furnishings and the owner's cost of an unsuccessful attempt to clean and fumigate the premises.

AT ONE POINT

The court was told at one point that the former tenant of the home could not afford to defend the suit against him.

A B.C. Research Council chemist testified it would be impractical to eliminate the offensive odors from the house and that everything which was polluted would have to be burned.

TEAR HOUSE DOWN

A contractor said it would be necessary to almost tear down the house and rebuild it.

"Without going into the nauseating and disgusting detail disclosed by the evidence of reputable witnesses," said Chief Justice Lett, "it would appear that Fergusson-Pollok and his wife were out of the house a good deal, but there is no evidence to indicate that the other occupants ever were."

BEAVER POINT

The property at Beaver Point was rented to Fergusson-Pollok from Sept. 5, 1958, to Feb. 5, 1959.

Advised of the court's judgment last night Fergusson-Pollok said, "I haven't got the money."

Asked if he would launch bankruptcy proceedings, he replied, "That's what it has come to."

EARN LIVING

He said he and his wife are at present trying to earn a living at photography and had opened a studio in Esquimalt.

He said they chose Esquimalt because they could open the studio with a six-month trade licence which cost only $7.50, while "in Victoria they expected me to put up a $500 bond."

The couple live a short distance from the castle.

with Mrs. Fergusson-Pollok's father, retired automobile mechanic Frederick S. McCannachie.

MILL-WORKER

Ten years ago Fergusson-Pollok, a mill-worker, inherited the 80-room, 1,000-year-old Pollok Castle near Glasgow, a large estate including a 40-room country home in Scotland, and a six-figure fortune.

He sold the castle, the lands and the 40-room house and moved some of the furniture to a 10-room home at Cobble Hill.

He said yesterday that his inheritance had all been lost on "bad investments."

Cars Flame In Riots

NAPLES, Italy (UPI)—More than 4,000 bus passengers and other rioters last night set fire to a bus station and a dozen vehicles before being dispersed by police in armored cars.

Sixty-eight persons, including 47 policemen, were injured, and 107 of the rioters were jailed.

CROSSFIRE ECHOES IN GIBSON DEBATE

Liberal Denies Asking Favors

By PETER BRUTON

Echoes of Liberal MLA J. Gordon Gibson's stinging denunciation of the Social Credit government continued to rebound in the legislature yesterday with a new flare-up over charges that the North Vancouver logger had sought and been given special privileges.

Mr. Gibson flatly denied the allegations but Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston didn't actually say he would retract.

"Will my honorable word not be taken in this House?" asked Mr. Gibson.

"You won't take anybody else's," snapped Premier Bennett.

The afternoon session began with Mr. Gibson rising on a point of privilege to deny that he had ever asked for personal or business favors from Lands and Forests Minister Williston. The minister Tuesday night had charged that he did.

Mr. Williston replied that he had requests from two companies for favors, including one at Blackwater.

"I have not one share in that company," snapped Mr. Gibson.

Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz said that the matter should be dropped. Mr. Gibson had made his statement and members must accept his denial.

'I'm a Member Now!'

"It's one man's word against another's," he said.

CCF leader Robert Strachan jumped into the act and said: "Go to the minister on behalf of your constituents and it comes up in the House."

"On his own behalf," retorted the premier.

Mr. Williston said that Mr. Gibson had not been a member at the time.

"I'm a member now!" called Mr. Gibson.

"A pretty poor member," interjected Health Minister Eric Martin.

Mr. Williston also hit out at statements by the Liberal MLA that timber company president H. R. MacMillan had accepted a forest management licence on Vancouver Island even though he opposed the granting of any more licences at the Sloan commission hearings.

He said this was true but that Mr. Gibson, in all fairness, should have added that the late Chief Justice Gordon Sloan disagreed with the recommendation and did, in fact, recommend that certain licences be given.

If the Liberal had wanted to oppose the granting of the licence he should have attended public hearings to lodge his objections.

Mr. Williston said the Liberal group had approached him after his attack on Mr. Gibson Tuesday night and said it was not proper to attack a man who was not in the House.

"They quoted May's parliamentary authority to me," he said. "I've only been here nine years but I know a little about common sense and debate is a two-way street."

"I don't have to read May to keep within the bonds of common decency."

Taunts 'Bodyguards'

He referred to the other Liberal members as "bodyguards" for Mr. Gibson, a term which infuriated Liberal leader Ray Perrault.

"This is a reflection on the Liberal group," he said. "Mr. Gibson can look after himself."

Mr. Williston was forced to apologize.

Later in the day Donald Brothers (SC—Rossland-Trail) expressed doubt that Mr. Gibson had written his fiery speech which sparked the uproar.

"The lawyers and the judges in Vancouver prepared that speech," boomed Mr. Gibson, referring to the fact that the speech made constant reference to court cases involving Social Credit cabinet ministers.

"Regardless of who prepared it, the Liberals are stuck with it," retorted Mr. Brothers who represents the constituency of former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers.

He said when Mr. Gibson was speaking he read from a script and everything he strayed away from Perrault would look around and bring him back to the speech.

"In our party there is democracy, nobody knows what I am going to say," Mr. Brothers observed.

"I don't think you know either," came a voice from the opposition.

When Gordon Dowding (CCF—Burnaby) was speaking on the subject later in the afternoon a government member asked if the CCF had written "Gordon's speech."

'Author! Author!'

Mr. Perrault jumped to his feet in protest.

There were too many references that the Liberals had to have everything ghost-written for them, he said.

This was greeted by loud laughter from the government backbenchers.

"Author, author," cried Premier Bennett.

Author, author, the backbenchers took up the cry.

Mr. Dowding, who a few minutes earlier had been accused of reading "a tedious, repetitious" speech, brought the House down with: "I think you all know I write my own speeches and they have a ring of authenticity."

He slapped out at Mr. Williston for his attack on Mr. Gibson, likening it to "a policy of counter-sneer" used by former minister Sommers.

He said if it was improper for Gibson to ask for a concession it was much more improper for the minister to grant such a concession.

"Are we to take it that the minister is granting concessions he should not give?" asked Mr. Dowding. "If he gives them so readily to such a critic of his policies as Mr. Gibson, how many more concessions is he giving people who aren't so critical?"

Crime Soars 30 Per Cent

MONTREAL (UPI)—More than 7,000 charges were laid under the Canadian Criminal Code here last year in 1960, police officials have referred to as "the year of the crime wave."

Figures released Wednesday showed a 30 per cent increase in crime last year as compared to 1959.

Censure Bid Fails in U.K.

LONDON (AP)—A Labor party motion of censure over increased charges for Britain's socialized medical services was defeated, 221 to 231, Wednesday in the Commons.

Spy Suspects Jaunty, Cheery

LONDON (CP)—Five persons accused of spying against Britain presented a jaunty air Wednesday as their preliminary hearing went through its second day.

The group appeared relaxed and confident as a Scotland Yard detective told of their arrest and the search of a suburban home the Crown contends they used as communications centre for a spy ring dealing in British naval secrets.

SECRET PHOTOS

Detective Superintendent George Smith told of the arrest of Gordon Arnold Lonsdale, 37, after two civilian admiralty employees handed him a bag containing secret photographs and documents.

Arrested with Lonsdale were Henry Frederick Houghton, 35, and his fiancée Miss Ethel Gee, 45, both civil servants at a naval station at Portland in the south of England. Two others—Peter John Kroger, 30, and his wife, Helen, 47—were picked up at their home in suburban Ruislip.

FACE TRIAL

The five are appearing for preliminary hearing in magistrate's court on charges laid under the Official Secrets Act. The magistrate will decide whether they should face trial.

Part of Wednesday's questioning attempted to uncover the background of Lonsdale who grinned as a lawyer and Superintendent Smith discussed his North American connections.

Lonsdale sat calmly, a book in his hands, as Superintendent Smith described a

'Idiotic' Man Facing Doom in 10 Years

CALGARY (CP)—Man will be faced with obliteration within 10 years unless nuclear disarmament takes place, Dr. H. L. Keenleyside said Wednesday.

The Canadian educator, former diplomat and present chairman of the British Columbia Power Commission, spoke to a university group in his capacity as president of the National Conference for the Control of Radiation Hazards.

Man, as "idiotic" as he is, stands in great danger of terminating himself if he does not limit the use of the tremendous destructive power available to him, Dr. Keenleyside said.

He credited Howard Green, minister of external affairs, and Prime Minister Diefenbaker with realizing the dangers of atomic fallout and atomic warfare.

Power Bill Cuts Little, Late

B.C. will never see drastic cuts in electric bills as result of downstream benefits in the Columbia River project, Lands and Forests Minister Williston told the legislature yesterday. In fact, he said, B.C. consumers will probably have a long wait for even small reduction in power cost because of a series of hurdles before the vast scheme is in operation.

Another time Mr. Speaker Shantz warned the CCF not to read his speech. Mr. Dowding said the minister should have made an explanation of his actions.

"He'll make one," called Premier Bennett.

"We're waiting for you to go to the Supreme Court of Canada," called Tony Gargrave (CCF—Mackenzie).

Dowding Raps Gagliardi

Jeers Punctuate Contempt Review

Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi was accused yesterday of further contempt of court and "certainly contempt of the public" for suggesting that taxpayers should dig into their pockets to pay his $1,000 fine and costs.

Catcalls and jeers punctuated a lengthy rundown on the Gagliardi case by Gordon Dowding (CCF—Burnaby) in the throne speech debate.

"Just wait until tomorrow," called Highways Minister Gagliardi as the CCFer read a lengthy account of the proceedings which saw the minister fined for disobeying a court order.

SPEAKS TODAY

The minister is due to speak today.

Mr. Dowding said that the minister did not have the courage or forthrightness to appear before the court to give his reasons for returning cash to an American contractor who had done construction work in B.C. There had been a court order forbidding him to do this.

REASON WHY?

"The reason he did not want to appear is that he was worried he would be cross-examined," said Mr. Dowding. At one time during the lengthy review in the throne speech debate, the Donald Brothers (SC—Rossland-Trail) protested that Mr. Dowding had been talking on the same subject for so long that Rule 43 forbidding members from being "tedious or repetitious" should be invoked.

SPEAKER WARNS

Another time Mr. Speaker Shantz warned the CCFer not to read his speech. Mr. Dowding said the minister should have made an explanation of his actions.

"He'll make one," called Premier Bennett.

"We're waiting for you to go to the Supreme Court of Canada," called Tony Gargrave (CCF—Mackenzie).

'Fact of Life' To Seat Red Chinese

LONDON (Reuters)—Foreign Secretary Lord Home told the House of Lords Wednesday Britain feels "the facts of international life" require the entry of Communist China into the United Nations.

Officials meanwhile denied a report that Prime Minister MacMillan is considering a visit to Peking this fall.

MLA Ends Male Reign

HALIFAX (CP)—A woman spoke Wednesday as a member of the Nova Scotia legislature — the first time it has happened in the 203-year history of that House.

Mrs. Gladys Porter (PC—Kings North), elected last June, seconded the reply to the Throne Speech as the legislature opened its 47th assembly.

CHILDREN over 35 will be encouraged by young Johnny Kennedy's success in getting elected president of the United States.

Johnny is just 43. Many people have been congratulating the lad for doing so well.

All the papers have been saying what a wonderful achievement it is, for a kid. One magazine ran a cartoon showing Johnny in a diaper, holding aloft a torch.

I understand the members of his Cub den have taken up a collection to buy him a new knife.

Of course, some people are worried. "Will it spoil the little fellow?" they're asking. "Will it go to his head?"

"Is it wise to let a youngster his age spend so much time with adults?" That's another question that bothers some of Johnny's elders.

But the people who know Johnny say that there is nothing to worry about. He's a well-adjusted boy, advanced for his age, both in school work and social development.

Is it fair to him to pull him out of his home and send him to live in that big White House? Won't the institutional atmosphere have a bad effect?

No. The risk of emotional damage is slight. He has his little companion Jackie to help him get used to the place.

What about the rough older boys with whom he will be forced to associate? Nikita? That Tse-tung boy from the East End?

You can set your mind at rest on that score. Whatever else you can say about him, young Johnny knows how to take care of himself.

Transfusions Now Almost Without Risk

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, MD

The following letter disturbed me. I've decided to answer it rather than risk letting the idea be bandied around unchallenged.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What is your candid opinion of blood transfusions? With all the hidden dangers of transfusions, why are they permitted when there is now on the market a manufactured substitute which gives the same results but without ill after-effects or any danger?"

"All that is known to date is that blood must be of a certain type, but nothing is known of what serious outbreaks might come later.—J.S."

Too many campaigns of this type are based on some knowledge of what is involved, but not all.

GOOD REASON

True, there is an element of risk in blood transfusions. Transfusions should not be given casually or without good reason. The risk involved is small, and is becoming smaller day by day, but the presence of any risk is sufficient to warrant the use of transfusions only for adequate reasons.

The same is true of surgery. Every operation potentially carries some risk. But the risk of not operating is so much greater that there is no question as to what to do. Operate when necessary!

ACCEPT RISK

The same, indeed, is true of any medication. Don't give any without a good reason. But always accept the small risk for the purpose of avoiding the greater one.

It is decidedly not true that a "manufactured substitute" for whole blood is available. "J.S." is referring to what is known as plasma expander, which is used primarily when a patient is in shock. It is not, as "J.S." mistakenly believes, given without risk. Although, again, the risk is small.

Plasma expander is not a substitute for a transfusion of whole blood. The latter contains red cells by which the body transports oxygen, which is desperately needed when blood has to be given for certain anemia states.

OTHER FACTORS

Whole blood provides albumin. It provides needed electrolytes—minerals in solution. It even provides some immediate nourishment from the modicum of blood sugar it contains.

These are absent from plasma expander.

In view of all this, I hope "J.S." will change his mind right away. But if any further argument is needed, all he has to do is weigh the one-in-a-thousand case of risk against the thousands-upon-thousands of lives which, in the last few years, would have been immediately forfeited without transfusions.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have been advised that cranberry juice would cure bladder infection. How would it differ from lemon or grape juice?—Mrs. E.R."

I'm afraid this is another home remedy that doesn't have much if any effect. Go to your doctor. He can use antibiotics. Drinking a lot of water—whether it has cranberry juice, lemon, or anything else, or nothing else in it—is important in clearing up bladder infections.

Note to Mrs. C.P.: I have not seen any evidence that the use of hormone creams will "help develop the bust." Since for whole blood is available, you are only 20, and married, "J.S." is referring to what is known as plasma expander, which is used primarily when

Court Parade

Driver Pitied, Jailed

Concurrent sentences of four months definite and three indefinite were handed down in city court yesterday to Esion Curtis, HMCS St. Laurent, on charges of criminally negligent driving and taking a car without the owner's consent.

The terms, following a downtown chase in which the car driven by Curtis ran without lights, will be served at the young offenders' unit at Oakalla prison. Curtis had a record of two prior convictions for taking cars.

"It is a pity," Magistrate William Ostler told him, "to see a young man of your good potential ruining his life by excessive consumption of alcohol, which leads to bad companions."

Curtis was also prohibited from driving anywhere in Canada for two years.

A sight that has brought a glint of amused appreciation to many Victoria eyes may be gone forever—a sturdy black Labrador happily riding the open flat deck of a truck. Owner John Harold Bailey, 646 Admirals, learned yesterday the Motor Vehicle Act expressly forbids the transporting of any living animal on a vehicle without cage, guard rail or other protection.

Bailey, and the Labrador, were stopped Jan. 23 on Blenheim, and yesterday the power was fined $10, minimum under the Act.

In Saanich, Alexander Hood, 537 Rithet, pleaded guilty to driving while impaired, after being stopped Tuesday evening when his car was weaving on Trans-Canada Highway. As it was a second offence he was given a 21-day jail term and his licence was suspended.

Judges Agree On Gagliardi

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mr. Justice H. I. Bird has concurred in the reasons for a judgment handed down recently in the B.C. court of appeal decision which dismissed the appeal of Highway Minister Gagliardi against his contempt of court conviction.

This makes the decision unanimous among the three judges.

Convict's Shot Felled Hostage

MONTREAL (UPI)—City police said Wednesday the shot that felled Mrs. Roland Cyr, a 14-hour hostage of an escaped convict from St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary Saturday, was fired by the convict, Donald Pollock.

B.C. Has Long, Long Wait For Cheap Columbia Power

Can't Expect Big Benefits —Williston

British Columbia power consumers will get no large reduction in their electricity bills from down-stream benefits in development of the Columbia River project—nor will they get any reduction soon.

This was the word from Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston yesterday as he spent 90 minutes in the legislature detailing the past, present and future of the Columbia River development program.

"I should like to emphasize," he said, "that the present agreement with the United States will not provide an abundance of cheap electricity at this time."

And, he added, that agreement will not be ratified "for some time."

He referred to the international treaty, signed by Canada and the United States last month, which sets out the principles for development of the river.

Ratification of the treaty by Ottawa cannot take place, Mr. Williston said, until necessary water licences are granted by the province. The licences cannot be granted until engineering has been carried far enough to support application for them.

HEARINGS NEEDED
In consideration of the applications, public hearings must be held. Detailed engineering must provide assurance that construction can be completed within times set forth in the treaty.

And most important of all, the methods for financing the project must be agreed upon by Ottawa and British Columbia.

All of this means, Mr. Williston said, that ratification cannot come quickly.

FEEL LITTLE IMPACT
Even if it could and even if the power to be returned in the form of Canada's share of downstream benefits could be delivered to Vancouver at 3.77 mills as has been said by Federal Justice Minister Fulton—and Mr. Williston took issue with Mr. Fulton's ability at this time to make such a firm estimate—the individual consumer would feel little impact.

RAY WILLISTON

SMALL PORTION
Canada's share of the downstream benefits at maximum capacity would total 1,300,000 kilowatts—which when spread throughout the southern areas of B.C. would be a small portion of the total power used.

Mr. Williston covered a broad range of matters in his lengthy, documented report, made as the second half of his address in the Throne Speech debate.

ADEQUATE AGREEMENT
He stressed the importance of reaching an adequate financial agreement with federal authorities.

"The largest single item of expenditure which must be paid for in the development of the Columbia is the cost of money."

The premier, he said, requires the assurance of the federal government that competition for money from "the limited lending pool now open to Canadians as a result of recent federal budget provisions will not force interest rates to such a height that the practicality of the whole scheme will be in doubt."

AGREEMENT CERTAIN
Outside the House, Mr. Williston said later he feels sure that an agreement will be reached between B.C. and Ottawa on financing. Explaining further in the House his statements concerning cheap power, Mr. Williston said that a portion of the capital works involved in the present plan will not be fully productive until at-site generation equipment has been installed. It may be 20 years before this brings returns.

"The first 20 years are not going to be easy," he said, "particularly if interest rates are high and the amount of money available for a long-term loan is in short supply."

MAJOR FACTOR

Mr. Williston said one of the major factors behind some of the moves and the swiftness with which they were made was contained in the fact that the United States had drawn up a plan of development for the Columbia within the U.S. It would have been more costly to the U.S., but if the Americans had proceeded with it ahead of the major development of the river in Canada, then there would have been no opportunity whatever for an agreement providing Canada with downstream benefits.

With this in mind, Canada had to decide which plan was best for development of the river in Canada. In the treaty, it accepted one which includes Mica Creek Dam, High Arrow Dam on the Arrow Lakes—to which many parties have voiced objection in recent weeks—and the Duncan Lake Dam.

A Case for Restraint

INDICATIONS that the 1959-60 slump in residential building in Canada may be coming to an end are provided by the January MacLean Building Report which shows residential building contracts to be up 20 per cent over a year ago.

One reason for the increased activity is that more mortgage money is available for housing this year. Last January N.H.A. loans at 6½ per cent interest were practically non-available; this year they are in fair supply. Also last year it was difficult to make a conventional loan at less than 7½ per cent. Now this type of money is freely available at 7 per cent.

Before jumping to conclusions however, it is wise to remember that January, 1959, was a miserable building month, 30 per cent below average, so that this year's start must also be classified as below normal.

There is still too large a percentage of unoccupied new homes in many parts of the country to justify any immediate boom in building. The industry is suffering from a spell of speculative building that was faster than the new demand for homes.

The Vancouver area suffered worse than Victoria in this respect, and in some of the fringe suburbs such as Richmond and Surrey there are still large numbers of new homes unoccupied although they have been completed for months.

Many of these speculative builders were carpenters and handymen who gave up their jobs to become, with the help of N.H.A. loans, contractors in their own rights. Unfortunately the slump caught up with them, and left some to face bankruptcy proceedings.

As the whole construction industry suffered in retrospect from the rash in speculative building, it would seem that some stricter control on this type of home building is required so that not only good town and suburban planning will be adhered to, but that the number of new permits should be geared to the potential demand for new homes in any given area.

Just as it is unwise to permit urban sprawl so that every new home gets a view lot, so it is surely undesirable to allow speculative builders to jam a sub-division of no particular geographic appeal with rows of strawberry boxes for which there is no immediate market.

Most of today's unoccupied new homes are the less attractive leftovers from the last building boom. Even at reduced prices they are hard to sell, and they are a drag on the whole real estate market. They should provide a warning to future planners.

Monty Rides Again

FIELD Marshal Viscount Montgomery, whose recent statements on international affairs have aroused considerable resentment on both sides of the Atlantic, has gone to some trouble to clarify his views on certain world leaders in his latest book "The Path of Leadership," according to first reports.

For his pains he has again received rough treatment from a number of professional critics.

Following his retirement from the active army, Viscount Montgomery set out on a personal fact-finding tour of Communist countries, and on his return was only too willing to pass on to all who were interested his appreciation of the world situation.

Some of his remarks were interpreted as being pro-Communist, others labelled anti-American—and practically all construed as being a deliberate attempt to cause alarm and despondency in the Western world.

Undaunted by this reception, the crusty old warhorse reiterates in his book the very opinions which so infuriated the multitude of self-styled pundits of the day.

He repeats that he believes Premier Khrushchev does not want war, simply because it would mean the ultimate destruction of the Soviet Union. He repeats that whereas the Communist leader has provided his country with good leadership, the United States has failed miserably to provide the same for the Western world.

No one will deny that these are not the sort of things that a diplomat or a statesman would say publicly—but then, Viscount Montgomery is neither a diplomat nor a statesman. On this point there may be justification for criticism.

But the basic truth behind his remarks cannot be ignored. Nor can the fact be overlooked that the man who led British, Commonwealth and Allied armies to a series of smashing victories in Africa and Europe must have a deeper and more intimate knowledge of the qualities of leadership than a good number of his critics.

New Main Gateway

MR. Attilio Randy's suggestion as to the use to which the proposed Blanshard Street extension should be put deserves study. There are a lot of good points in it.

Mr. Randy, a professional horticulturist with vision, suggests that the extension should replace Douglas Street as Victoria's new "main gate." In a letter to the Capital Improvement District Commission he goes on to paint a word picture of an impressive entrance "developed as a park-like avenue... with trees, flowers and any other attributes that may lend dignity and glory to Victoria."

In the heyday of the CPR ferries the Causeway was Victoria's main entrance. Now the main approach and departure route is on the northern side of the city, on Douglas Street.

The visitor's first view of the city limits is not exactly the sort of impression the city would like him to have. Interspersed with ultra-modern buildings put up in the last year or two the route along which nearly all tourist traffic moves is lined with a variety of eyesores just too, too depressing.

Ugly woodyards, dumps, and rundown buildings vie with untidy, weed-infested vacant lots to create a first impression that the city had given up trying to look respectable. It is a dismal vista only partially relieved by more recent reconstruction.

There are plans on the drawing boards for the margins of the road to be beautified within the limitations imposed by finance. But very little can be done about the down-at-heel private property beyond.

Blanshard Street, on the other hand, will when extended beyond Hillside follow a route affording opportunity to make a new and more enlightened start along the lines suggested by Mr. Randy. To be feasible his plan would entail widening Blanshard south of Hillside, but tentative city plans already cover that. There are, too, parts of Blanshard which could scarcely be described as beautiful.

If Mr. Randy's interesting idea would fit into the over-all long-range plan for organization of traffic flow patterns it might do for Victoria what very much needs to be done—though the cost could be heavy. Against that it might save the expenditure the city is prepared to make on reconstruction of the Roundabout.

Interpreting the News

Missile Race: Who's Ahead?

By HAROLD MORRISON, Canadian Press Staff Writer

THE new Kennedy administration seems to be shifting to the view that United States military strength is adequate and there isn't any need of a "missile program in missile production."

This is a reversal of the Democratic position during the presidential election campaign last fall when former president Eisenhower was accused of putting dollar considerations over security and allowing the United States to fall behind Russia in long-range missile production.

The argument that the United States has just as many long-range missiles as Russia now is being voiced in Defence Secretary Robert McNamara's own office, much to the chagrin of some Democratic senators who had urged a big drive in missile output.

President Kennedy himself repeatedly maintained during the presidential campaign that reports showed Russia would be leading in missiles during the next few years.

Republican candidate Richard Nixon, supported by Eisenhower, countered that the Democratic charges were nonsense and that in overall deterrent power the United States was supreme.

McNamara's preliminary investigation of America's missile situation, however, has led him to the tentative conclusion that Eisenhower may have been right—that in overall "deterrent" power, the United States is ahead of Russia and is likely to remain that way.

What is behind the change in pace? There seems to be every indication that the American financial situation is a key factor.

As Kennedy took office, he was confronted by the immediate need of shorting up American gold reserves and of finding ways of restoring world confidence in the dollar.

Balancing the budget is one way of doing this.

In the end Kennedy may have to agree with Eisenhower who departed from his office with these words: "The 'bomber gap' of several years ago was always a fiction and the 'missile gap' shows every sign of being the same."

Seen From Whitehall

U.K.'s Congo Quandary

By ROBERT STEPHENS
From London

PRESIDENT Kennedy's recall of the American ambassador, from Leopoldville for a review of United States policy over the Congo does not appear to have been matched by any parallel action in Whitehall. The seriousness of the Congo situation is realized here but no new ideas have yet emerged on how to deal with it.

Officially British policy still pins its hopes on three factors: President Kasavubu's efforts to reach a local agreement through a national round-table conference; the mediation of the United Nations conciliation mission under the chairmanship of Nigeria, and the support of the peace-keeping mission of the United Nations Force in the Congo.

This policy has not so far been changed, despite the weakening of at least two of these factors. President Kasavubu's efforts to reach a local agreement through a national round-table conference; the mediation of the United Nations conciliation mission under the chairmanship of Nigeria, and the support of the peace-keeping mission of the United Nations Force in the Congo.

No tears are being shed here over the withdrawal from the Congo of the United Arab Republic and Guinea troops. But the Moroccans, for example, whose contingent numbers over 3,000 men, are another matter.

The British still hope that Mr. Hammarskjöld may be able to persuade the Moroccans to change their minds and to fill the remaining gaps in the UN ranks with contingents from other countries, such as Malaysia.

The Congo represents an embarrassing problem for Britain in her relations not only with Africa but also with her European allies and the Commonwealth. India and Ghana among her Commonwealth partners have been pressing for a more radical policy in the Congo which would condemn alleged Belgian intervention and give greater support for the political claims of the imprisoned former premier, Patrice Lumumba. In resisting condemnation of Belgium, the British have in mind not only their European allies and their relations with European communities elsewhere in Africa, but also questions of principle and practice.

First of all, the official British view draws a distinction between Belgian civilian and military technicians. As regards civilian personnel, the British believe there is nothing in the UN resolutions which forbids their employment in the Congo.

From a practical point of view, their help is regarded as useful and the British are anxious to avoid the establishment of the principle that it is either morally or politically wrong for a former colony to continue to employ nationals from the former ruling power. Such a principle would be contrary to successful efforts being made by Britain to continue helping several of her former colonial territories which have now become independent.

As far as military personnel are concerned, it is admitted in Whitehall that their despatch under official Belgian government auspices would be contrary to the UN resolution and generally unwise. But it is argued that the Belgian government is not officially sending or encouraging military volunteers. They are being recruited by the Congolese authorities on their own initiative and it is very difficult for the Belgian government to prevent this recruiting. The British government itself, it is said, might be hard put to prevent volunteers or private adventurers going to the Congo from Britain or British territories, if they wished to do so.

Reports from Ottawa

MAD about something the government has done? Or hasn't done? Try writing your member of Parliament. Or even the prime minister.

I know one woman who wrote the prime minister, and as a result he had Parliament pass the Disability Allowances Act. Because Miss Marie-Paule Francoeur of 25 King Street, Sherbrooke, Que., wrote her letter to Prime Minister St. Laurent seven years ago, she and 51,000 other totally and permanently disabled Canadians now receive government allowances of $55 a month. This comes to $35,000,000 a year. Quite an achievement for a lone woman who cannot even move around her little apartment without her wheelchair.

And then there was the letter that 10-year-old Michele Miller of Weston, Ont., wrote Prime Minister Diefenbaker last May, pleading that he intercede to spare the lives of the wild ponies on Sabie Island. He did.

These letters stand out in my memory, but they do nothing more than indicate the enormous power to influence Ottawa that rests, often unrecognized and unused, in the writing hands of the people.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker gets about 100 letters a day, and reads most of them. Those citizens who wrote him criticizing the position he took on trade with Cuba after the U.S. trade embargo was imposed in October had a decided effect in influencing the government towards moderation.

College students and their parents have complained for years that the income tax law put an unfair burden on them. Certainly hundreds of letters, maybe thousands, have been received by MPs on this subject. And like the little drops of water that wear away the hardest rock, they finally persuaded the government to act.

Finance Minister Fleming's "Baby Budget" contains a provision to permit students to deduct tuition fees from earned income, and to permit the parents of students to claim tax exemptions on their college offspring if the latter's earned income does not exceed $950 plus his fees.

Most MPs like R. D. Thrasher (Con.-Essex South, Ont.), are "very pleased" to get letters. It takes them an hour or two a day to read and answer them, but as Miss Margaret Aitken (Con.-York-Humber, Ont.) says, they keep her in touch with her constituents—and for a politician, that's pay dirt.

The MPs' mail is a deluge, but most of it is printed matter, letters about personal problems, and form letters from pressure groups. The average MP gets only about a couple of hundred letters a year expressing the writers' own opinions on issues of current importance. The MPs prize such letters as a gauge of public opinion. Often they echo the letters' opinions in speeches in Parliament, or in talks with cabinet ministers. Former cabinet minister Paul Martin says that "lots of times" such letters bring action.

In our representative form of government we elect MPs and prime ministers to represent us, to do for us the things we want done but cannot, in our complex and unwieldy society, do ourselves.

Often they fail to carry out our wishes. For that they may deserve censure, even dismissal. But not if we leave them in the dark about our wishes, and they err in good faith. It doesn't cost a cent to write your MP. The post office will deliver your letter free. No stamp.

The Packack

That Unenlightened Era

By GREGORY CLARK

IN the less enlightened era that has passed you could always get somebody to come to your rescue when the plumbing burst or the baby swallowed a pin or you found to your horror that there was no bread in the house.

The grocer, in those days, lived over the premises. All you had to do was go and rap on the side door. Plumbers were private individuals, not incorporated companies, and they lived in natural expectation of being called out at all hours of the night.

And doctors, in those days, had not even heard of an answering service. Unless he was out on a call, a doctor was at home, not at a hockey game or a movie or attending some festivity of his profession. And if he was out on a call and the baby swallowed a pin, you merely had to go where he was. His wife knew.

Neither doctors nor grocers nor plumbers had any illusions about their human rights. When they embraced their profession or calling, they surrendered to it. A day and a night had 24 hours in it. And they were on call the whole 24, and lived over the premises.

Little by little we are drawing apart from one another. The time may come when we will not expect much of anybody. We will all be incorporated.

Who's for Coffee?

Anti-Social Exposure

(From The Montreal Gazette)

IT ISN'T been those who have doubted whether the "coffee break" really made a worker any more ready to work. The suspicion has lingered that it has been just an agreeable way of wasting a little time, or a great deal of time, as the case might be.

Now the assistant chief scientist of the Defence Research Board, Dr. M. G. Whillans, says that the coffee break, as a rest for the mind, is practically a hoax. To move off a chair at a desk on to a chair in a coffee shop will do nothing to improve the standard of work.

He proposes, instead of a coffee break, a brisk walk around the block.

Split Showing

New Party's Leadership

By PETER DEMPSON

OTTAWA—The leftist New Party has been caught with its split showing—even before it has formally come into being. A big battle is shaping up over who's going to be leader. Premier T. C. (Tommy) Douglas of Saskatchewan, says he's available for the job, but doesn't really want it. Hazen Argue, the national CCF chairman, has his heart set on getting the post, and intends to fight for it. He feels he's earned it. David Lewis, bilingual Toronto labor lawyer, is a dark horse who has the backing of the CCF's old guard and a lot of Big Labor.

What could happen is a triple play, with Hazen Argue squeezed out as odds-on favorite, if Premier Douglas pulls a last-minute reverse and throws his support to Lewis.

The rift is already open to public view, and unless those behind the coming marriage of socialism and organized labor get together in a hurry for some deft behind-the-scenes pacifying, it can only get wider.

As it is, some damage has already been done. Witness the curious dogfight which broke out last week in the quarters of the parliamentary press gallery.

The New Party's national committee, which has been meeting here, called a news conference. To give it an air of considerable importance, all the movement's big guns turned up to answer questions with the exception of the man who touched off this latest controversy: Premier Douglas.

Stanley Knowles, chairman of the national committee and an executive vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress, was present.

So was David Lewis, of Toronto, national president of the CCF. So was Claude Jodoin, president of the CLC. So was Hazen Argue. It might have been better for him if he hadn't attended. For it must have been an embarrassing and humiliating experience.

When the question of leadership was discussed, all three of Mr. Argue's New Party colleagues bluntly said they would support Premier Douglas. They summed it up this way:

He's the best political leader in Canada today, of all parties. He's the one man in the country who can unite the labor and farmer factions under the New Party banner.

He's had both federal and provincial experience—nine years an MP and Saskatchewan premier for almost 17 years. He's a first-rate administrator, as he has shown during the time he's held office in Saskatchewan. He's a proven stump man, and the right age at 56. He has also shown he can win elections.

Mr. Argue, the burly, 40-year-old Kayville, Saskatchewan, wheat farmer, who has been able to win elections himself since first winning a seat in the House of Commons in 1945, listened stoically to the shower of praise and adulation heaped upon his rival.

What were his views on the leadership?

"I feel that Premier Douglas is not available," he said. "I've had many and frequent talks with the premier on this question, and am of the opinion he won't run."

Mr. Argue added that he thought the premier "can make his best contribution in Saskatchewan."

It was then the differences over the leadership flared into the open.

"It's a pity we have to expose this disagreement," Mr. Lewis said. "Some of us have talked with Mr. Douglas very recently, and we are convinced his colleagues in Saskatchewan will support his taking the leadership and that he will do it."

With that slapping down of Mr. Argue, Mr. Lewis went on to suggest that next to Premier Douglas he, himself, would make the "second best" leader of the New Party. It's just possible that he may get to wear the leadership mantle—in spite of the embarrassing fact that in four tries he's never been able to persuade any electorate to send him to the House of Commons.

Despite what Mr. Douglas recently said in Regina—that he would "go wherever the movement thinks I can make my best contribution"—there are many among the CCF and labor who feel he will not leave Saskatchewan. Heading a national party is a strenuous task, and the premier isn't in the best of health.

So it's possible that the Saskatchewan premier may be trying to stir up added interest in the coming founding convention of the New Party, to be held in Ottawa July 31 to August 4. He's also on record as saying that the man he would like to see get the leadership is David Lewis.

Mr. Lewis, a Toronto labor lawyer, is 51. He's able, ambitious and aggressive. The old guard of the CCF is behind him, provided Premier Douglas doesn't run. The steel unions would support him. So would most other labor groups.

So, if Mr. Argue is able to snuff off Mr. Douglas by having the premier declare he's definitely not a candidate, he may encounter just as tough an opponent in Mr. Lewis.

A veteran CCF member has suggested that Mr. Douglas, Mr. Argue and Mr. Lewis get together and work out a compromise. The idea has considerable merit.

Give Tommy Douglas the leadership for a five or a 10-year period, to get the New Party rolling. Appoint Mr. Argue as his chief lieutenant for the farmer and Mr. Lewis to a similar position for labor. Then, when Mr. Douglas retires, let them contest the leadership at a convention.

That's the gist of it—and it's possible that something like this just may happen.

How Long Can Adlai Last at UN?

Kennedy's Achilles Heel

By AARON R. KINFARK

UNITED NATIONS (TNS)—Adlai Stevenson, new United States ambassador to the UN, is probably the most accomplished and talented diplomat ever to represent his country here. But the big question being asked at UN headquarters today is: How long can Adlai last?

No one doubts Stevenson's capability in dealing with the Bitter Pills Ahead For U.S. to Swallow

Russians; his charm, wit and intellectual brilliance are all ready making some people here feel sorry for the inept, rather stodgy Soviet UN delegation which, for the first time in eight years, will come up against first class competition from the United States representative.

But it's not the Russians Adlai has to fear. It's the folks back home—the American people—who are going to have to swallow some very bitter pills while Stevenson holds down the top U.S. post here. For eight years, the Ameri-

Kennedy's policies. The U.S. is on the verge of some disastrous defeats at the UN. No. 1 being the admission of Communist China.

Even if Stevenson followed the Lodge-Eisenhower line of adamantly opposing Red China's admission, he could do little to prevent it because the balance of UN power is no longer held by the U.S.

Stevenson has already warned Congressmen that Red China's admission is probable—but when it actually comes Adlai is the one who will be blamed for it.

Whether the American people in general, or the Republican party in particular, will follow Stevenson's advice about "acting reasonably" is highly debatable.

For Stevenson is the Achilles heel of the Kennedy administration, a vulnerable spot that the Republicans can make the most of in criticism of Jack

Letters to the Editor

Not Untried

It is reported in the Feb. 7 Colonist that local teachers supported the stand taken by the B.C. Teachers' Federation in opposing immediate action on any of the recommendations contained in the Chant report. This in view of the urgent need for more classroom space is surprising.

Special objection seems to be taken against the recommendation to eliminate junior high schools, and the suggestion is made that this change should be made, if at all, only on a partial basis to "make the change over and see how it works." That is to forget that the innovation of junior high schools was itself an experiment within recent memory. We have been seeing how it works and there has grown up a strong disapproval of the junior high and all its works. There is a feeling that the Chant commission is on the right track.

If its recommendation is adopted we would simply be reinstating a tried and proven system which worked satisfactorily over a period of two or three generations. It assumes rightly that children are children and not young society ladies and gentlemen until they are old enough to enter high school.

We would not be making an untried experiment. The two-level system of education is really the norm. But this fact is not known to the present generation of young people and younger teachers.

As a former teacher I congratulate the Chant commission on having the temerity to say eliminate the junior high schools.

Meaning of Pacifism

Could I clear up a misunderstanding that seems to have arisen in regard to the address by Dr. Kaplan? Though this meeting is sponsored by a group of women, the general public, which includes men, with or without their wives, are cordially invited.

Also there are many definitions of the words "pacifism" and "pacifist," such as to appease, to tranquilize, one who will not partake in war, conscientious objector, etc. The definition of pacifism as the doctrine that the abolition of war is both desirable and possible is the only one which could apply to Voice of Women.

We believe that this idea is shared by most people in the world today, and our primary aim is to contribute to, and work for, greater international co-operation and understanding.

Courageous Trustees

To those who think the Sooke school district's new rules of conduct funny or ill-advised may I urge that they read the article in the November, 1960, issue of the Ladies' Home Journal entitled "Let's Make It Safe to Send Our Children to Big City Schools." It affirmatively answers the question: Do big city schools corrupt some children, fail to educate many?

Let us not take the complacent attitude: "It can't happen here." An interested and alert public opinion can ensure it will not.

The courageous action of the Sooke school district is, therefore, to be highly commended, as is the Feb. 2 editorial in the Daily Colonist titled: "Sooke Points the Way."

Consider: what future is there in today's world for the individual and ultimately for the nation as a whole if respect for education goes?

Nostalgic Record

Blessings on the Colonist for still clinging to the excellent style of the magazine section, The Islander. Never let it go. Keep it always the friendly paper it is with its nostalgic record of local history and tradition, its exciting flashbacks and its heart-warming stories of human interest along with the interesting articles from far places.

Today's trend makes one doubly appreciative of the few remaining magazine sections such as The Islander that maintain their own individuality. Keep up the good work.

Arrow Lakes Folly

I would like to express my opinion about the proposal of the B.C. government to build a high dam in the Arrow Lakes area of British Columbia.

In the first place before considering any such action the government should seriously consider the effect upon all those people residing in the valley, from Revelstoke down to West Robson. All told there must be around 5,000 people living in the area. Many of them would have their homes and lands flooded and lose all they have.

Secondly, when extra power is desired by the use of the Columbia River I would suggest a dam being built north of Revelstoke near Mica Creek to back the river waters into the Big Bend section. I am an old timer in B.C. and know the country well.

A few years ago I advocated that the highway department build a road along the Arrow Lakes area to connect Nisku with Arrowhead and to link up with the Trans-Canada Highway at Revelstoke, but no action was taken.

False Stress

Mr. C. E. Stoud's excellent letter against university graduates for welfare work hits the nail right on the head. Not only in welfare work but throughout our whole democratic system this false stress on university degrees is idiotic and does not lead to efficiency and economy. In actual fact, just the opposite.

This education binge of the past 25 years has us all reeling, and any thinking person who will take time out to analyze the results can only come to the conclusion that, with a few exceptions, it is a phoney racket which only adds to the tax burden and excludes the intelligent layman.

I fear this insidious trend far more than any Russian threat.

Time Ripe to Ease Tensions

(From UPI, AP)
WASHINGTON — President Kennedy indicated yesterday that he hoped future U.S.-Soviet talks would lead to an easing of tensions in both the Congo and Laos, currently the world's two biggest East-West trouble spots.

Kennedy told his news conference he was sure the Soviets shared his country's concern over both areas "and I am hopeful that we will make our position clear to them and accomplish some other full result."

Kennedy Hopeful for Talks

The president indicated that a previous "full result" of such talks was the Soviet release of the two imprisoned U.S. airmen. Kennedy repeated yesterday that this act "removed a serious obstacle to harmonious relations with the Soviet Union."

Something more definite on future U.S. strategy toward Russia should emerge from talks Kennedy will hold this week with Llewellyn Thompson, U.S. ambassador to Moscow. It was Thompson's two-hour talk last month with Premier Khrushchev that led to release of the RB-47 bomber.

At the same time, the president also pledged U.S. support for NATO. He particularly underscored the country's determination "to maintain our military strength in Europe."

Kennedy conceded he does not know whether there is a "missile gap" or not—but he does still believe the U.S. is entering the years of its greatest peril.

Kennedy backed away at his press conference from his campaign charges that Russia will outnumber the United States in missiles for three years.

The Pentagon now is press-

President Kennedy and a woman, likely a reporter, in a close conversation.

visit to Lonsdale's London apartment where a Canadian passport and birth certificate—the Crown says they were forged—were found.

Found also were two Chinese scrolls with secret ciphers, a cigarette lighter with a secret compartment which contained aerial wire and several draft letters, said the detective, as well as a British Columbia driver's licence.

When James Dunlop, counsel for Houghton and Miss Gee, asked the superintendent whether Lonsdale had spent some time in London or the United States, the detective replied:

"All I can tell you is that a man named Lonsdale has, but whether it is this man... 'You cannot say if it is this man?' Dunlop asked. 'No,' replied Smith.

IN FACT, RUSSIAN

Lonsdale and the Krogers were at first believed to be Canadians but Sir Reginald Manningham-Buller, Britain's attorney-general, said at the opening of the hearing it appears Lonsdale "is in fact a Russian."

After a check, RCMP in Ottawa reported that the Krogers definitely were not Canadian. They said their investigation of Lonsdale was continuing.

The Toronto Telegram said yesterday a police investigation showed the date of birth of Lonsdale's passport "is the same as on a birth certificate issued to a Gordon Arnold Lonsdale born Aug. 27, 1924, in Cobalt, Ont."

"Police said it appears that the real Lonsdale is either on trial in London or is being impersonated by a Russian," the newspaper said.

WIND UP CASE

The crown stated Wednesday it will wind up its case today. The charges laid could bring prison sentences of three to seven years.

B.C. Pipeline Men Preferred for Job

Westcoast Transmission Co. has every intention of using B.C. labor to build a $30,000,000 pipeline to carry oil from the Peace River area to Vancouver refineries, a company spokesman said yesterday.

D. J. Owen, vice-president, said the company has no intention of bringing in labor from outside the province unless there is a shortage of skilled pipeline workers.

Westcoast officials have indicated the new line should be completed before the end of the year.

'IMPORTS' COSTLY

"Let's be cold-blooded about it," said Mr. Owen. "It would cost more money to bring in labor from outside B.C. and we won't do it unless forced. It is our intention to use local labor to the greatest extent of available capabilities and capacity."

He was commenting on a written request from Victoria Labor Council to Labor Minister Peterson that the government give a firm undertaking that B.C. contractors and workers would be used on the pipeline project.

The letter, said Ald. A. W. Toome, secretary-treasurer of V.L.C., also asked for an assurance that B.C. labor laws would be strictly enforced on the new project. He said there have been numerous complaints on "long hours and low wages" on pipeline projects in the past.

Twins Born 22 Days Apart

BELMONT, Calif. (AP)—A 40-year-old mother has given birth to twin daughters 22 days apart.

Her obstetrician said Wednesday it was the third longest time lapse between the birth of twins in recorded medical history.

The first twin was born to Mrs. Beulah Swift Jan. 9 and weighed only 23 ounces. It died two days after birth.

After the normal recuperative period, Mrs. Swift gave birth to a 30-ounce twin girl Jan. 31. The baby is in fair condition, despite a drop of three ounces.

Dr. Stanley Levine, who made both deliveries, said twins were born 56 days apart in 1953 and 35 days apart in 1957.

Oompah-Pah Costs $5,500,000

OTTAWA (CP)—More than $5,500,000 was put up by the defence department in the 1959-60 fiscal year for both active and reserve bandmen.

Egan Chambers, parliamentary secretary to Defence Minister Harkness, disclosed the figure in a breakdown of band expenses given in the Commons yesterday.

Ticket Issue

'Insult' To Police Loses Out

VANCOUVER (CP)—A proposal that the police commission report to council on the number of traffic appeals that go before the courts failed Wednesday. The motion was defeated by a 7-2 vote.

County Court Judge Stanley Remnant suggested last week that traffic police could use more discretion in issuing tickets. He said "a warning would serve the purpose just as well in minor violations where the infraction is technical in nature."

Ald. Halford Wilson wondered if there wasn't a feeling in the police mind to collect revenue from motorists instead of devoting attention to safety and enforcement of the law.

Ald. Earle Adams said "I think it's insulting to the police department to think there are any instructions issued to them to bring in a certain quota of tickets."

'Phasing Out' Faces CF-100

OTTAWA (UPI)—Defence Minister Douglas Harkness said yesterday the "phasing out" of the nine CF-100 squadrons in service in Canada will begin this year.

But he told the House of Commons he was unable to say if the 11-year-old CF-100s would be replaced.

Shumiatcher Jury Excused

REGINA (CP)—The 12-man jury hearing the trial of Regina lawyer Dr. M. C. Shumiatcher was excused Wednesday by Mr. Justice D. C. Disbrey until Friday morning while the Crown and defence lawyers argue the admissibility of evidence the Crown wishes to introduce.

Dr. Shumiatcher is charged with three counts of counselling perjury.

At Least Eight Going

Pick of Shuttlers Off to Nationals

At least eight Victoria players will be on the B.C. team for the Canadian badminton championships Feb. 27-March 2 in Calgary.

Maureen Hibernon, Bob Hunt and Mel Chapman of Victoria will join Vancouver's Wayne Macdonnell, Bert Ferguson, Eric Slack, Fran Weaver and Sharon Whittaker (a Victoria girl playing out of Vancouver while attending University of British Columbia) on the senior team.

Victoria juniors making the trip will be Judy Humber, Alyson Day-Smith, Diana Godfrey, Wendy Williams and Alex Barlowen. Vancouver youngsters on the team are Carol Ashby, Rolf and Ed Paterson, Howie Tate and Howie Meakin. Others may be added after further trials.

Other players may enter from Victoria and Vancouver, but the above are the ones going under the auspices of the B.C. Badminton Association.

B.C. has high hopes that its strong junior team will retain the Ontario Trophy at the competition. It goes to the team compiling the most points in the championships, with points being awarded to the individual members as they advance in the various events.

Bob Macmurech has been re-elected president of the B.C. association and will be delegate to the Canadian annual general meeting March 1-2 in Calgary.

Also elected at the meeting in Victoria were Ferguson and Ed Hedley of Victoria, vice-presidents, and Clare King of Victoria, secretary-treasurer. Directors are Mary Jean Smith, Jim Wells and Rom Knott of Victoria, and Mrs. Freda Paton, John McQueen and John Sutherland of Vancouver.

Doug Fletcher Picked Again

Doug Fletcher has been elected to his 19th term as president of the Greater Victoria Box Lacrosse Association. He has held the position every season but one since 1942.

Other officers elected at the recent meeting were Hector McNeill, first vice-president; Roy Wolsey, second vice-president; Charlie Southern, third vice-president; Charlie Thomas, treasurer; Frank Holmes, secretary; and Tom Jennings, registrar.

Donald Dunn, Wilson's brother, will be the racing secretary at Portland Meadows, the same position he has held for the past three years with the Asot Jockey Club.

Asot and B.C. Turf and Country Club have combined operations this year to race at Exhibition Park and Sandown Park this summer as Lansdowne has been chosen down.

Officials appointed to run the meetings include presiding steward Earle A. Lewis; associate steward Merv Peters; racing secretary Merv Keller and Clay Puett, steward representing the B.C. Racing Commission.

Peters is the only new face among the officials. He recently resigned his position with the Vancouver Sun sports department.

Ahearne Blasts 'Pro Style' of Hockey

Canadian Rules, Not Smokies, Draw Fire

Canada's hockey rules players do all their body-check, brain, and not brawn," he said. "That is the opinion of J. F. 'Bunny' Ahearne, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, who sprang to Smokies' defence but blasted the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

"If the CAHA had its own rules instead of following the professionals, and if we got rid of the centre red line and made let them play under European rules all winter, then enter the world championships.

Ahearne added that he had had "hundreds" of requests from Canada for copies of the European hockey rules, indicating a growth of interest in the European game.

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—Robert L. Masted, 33-year-old veteran shortstop of the Stillwater Prison baseball team, told authorities he stayed in training after his parole Dec. 23.

Masted, seized Monday in an attempted burglary, admitted 11 thefts since his release. Police said Masted might reach Stillwater in time for spring training.

All Police 'Recruits'

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Montreal Star has predicted a complete reorganization of the Quebec Provincial Police within the next two weeks. The newspaper disclosed that all major staff officers of the force have been conferring with director Joseph Brunet and wholesale changes in rank and duties will take place in the near future. John D. Kennedy

Leaders Set Date

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker will visit President Kennedy in Washington Feb. 20 for a get-acquainted chat on foreign affairs.

The one-day visit will make Diefenbaker the first head of government to have a personal meeting with the new president.

The prime minister said Wednesday the informal talks would cover "matters of mutual interest," international affairs and Canadian-American problems.

Kennedy said he thought it was "most important that harmonious relations exist between two old friends."

Mr. Diefenbaker also said Prime Minister Macmillan hopes to come to Ottawa after his Washington visit in April.

NATO intelligence chief planned a drastic change in the manner of law enforcement throughout the province, the Star reported.

The newspaper said that under the new plan, all ranks will revert to the status of recruits with the passage of a new police act now before the Quebec legislature.

The Star quoted Brunet as saying that the study of records of the members of the force, of their seniority basis and their education had just about been completed.

Members of the force, including the highway and house police divisions, will be sworn in according to the provisions of the new law and will then take ranks assigned to them, the Star said.

Returning

Government officials in Ottawa last night hailed President Kennedy's appointment of Livingston Merchant as U.S. ambassador to Canada. Veteran career diplomat held same post from 1956 to 1958.

Witches in U.K. No Longer Evil

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — A Jesuit priest said Wednesday a year of research has convinced him there are people who still practice witchcraft in England and lingering beliefs in black magic exist in some rural areas.

Rev. Joseph Christie said witches believe in the power of charms and incantations to influence persons or events. For example, some believed their mass incantations forced Hitler to abandon plans to invade England.

He said his research did not turn up evidence that witches attempt to use their "powers" for evil purposes. Gatherings of witches today are devoted to such harmless practices as the chanting of fertility rites and ritual dances.

Britain was the centre for witches in the day of the 17th century witch hunts when the Salem trials were underway in Massachusetts. Professional "witch finders" roamed England and one, Matthew Hopkins, tortured at least 200 persons to make them confess. Many were hanged.

Kennedy Swings Weight In New Orleans Crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy pledged yesterday to use the "moral authority" and influence of the White House in the New Orleans school integration crisis and other civil rights disputes whenever such action promises results.

He told a news conference his administration was "carefully considering" what specific steps to take in New Orleans where segregationists have organized a campaign to block white children from entering schools opened to Negro pupils.

He indicated these steps would be disclosed later. But he promised that "at such time as I think it is most useful and most effective, I will attempt to use the moral authority or position of influence of the presidency in New Orleans and in other places."

smoothness- in seconds!

That's right! It just takes seconds to stir Gerber Cereals to creamy-smooth perfection. That's because they thirst for milk or formula... and absorb it in a flash. Best of all, there's no separation; the smoothness lasts throughout the serving. One big reason why babies love these superior cereals.

As for your baby's nutritional well-being, Gerber Cereals are thoroughly cooked and easy to digest so baby can get full nutritional benefits from them. In addition, these quality cereals are enriched with easy-to-absorb iron, B-vitamins and calcium. And they've plenty of the calories every active baby needs.

Woman MLA Hits School Report, Defends 'Frill'

Mrs. Camille Mather (CCF-Delta) opposed two points in the Chant report on education in her maiden speech in the legislature yesterday.

She objected to driving lessons being considered a frill, saying:

"We must assist our children to take their place in a changing world. Are there many more important things than learning to drive a car properly? I do not say learning to drive a car—but learning to drive a car properly."

MRS. CAMILLE MATHER

AN AFTERTHOUGHT

She didn't like the idea of separate vocational schools, "an afterthought or second-best education, available for those students who it is supposed cannot make the academic grade."

"It should help the gifted student who may be interested in working with his hands and brain—it should not reflect a student's intelligence."

She said a more logical approach would be to limit immediately the number of students per teacher.

Mrs. Mather took a swipe at Vancouver Island when she asked that the motor vehicle branch be moved to Vancouver or Burnaby.

"Take it from this beautiful, but offshore island and put it where it belongs," she said. "The motor vehicle branch was established for the convenience of motorists... Move the branch."

STUDENT SWAP

Mrs. Mather proposed a Pacific Plan for exchange of B.C. school children to visit the Orient, and for those of the Orient to see B.C.

She suggested a regular annual visit of 100 high school students from B.C. and an equal number from Japan, China and other lands of the east.

Scolding male MLAs for talking too much, Mrs. Mather gave the session's shortest speech—25 minutes.

"It seems to me there is a great deal of talking, not too much said and not much action," she said, calling on all parties to agree to a "dis-talkament conference" to save time and therefore money.

Boy, 12, Sleeps Off 48-Hour Film Binge

Pension Bill Bandwagon Overloaded

OTTAWA (CP)—Introduction of a bill raising disabled veterans' pensions was delayed in the Commons again Wednesday as debate stalled at the resolution stage.

MPs from both sides of the House paraded to the support of the measure to the extent that Veterans Affairs Minister Churchill was unable for the second straight day to introduce the bill.

Liberal J. W. Pickersgill said the resolution had been debated to the point where it is threadbare.

FALSE RUMOR

Juan Vicente Gomez, Venezuelan dictator from 1908 to 1935, often spread rumors of his death, then shot or jailed anyone who began celebrating.

Belgium Hits U.S. Proposal

BRUSSELS (UPI)—Belgian Foreign Minister Pierre Wigny yesterday attacked American proposals to strengthen the UN mandate in the Congo and disarm the many armies in the African nation.

"The American attitude does not seem to take into account even the most legitimate Western interests," Wigny told the foreign affairs committee of the Chamber of Representatives.

Wigny said UN action in the Congo has failed because of internal disputes among member nations. He warned it would be risky to put too much trust in the world organization.

The Congolese will not accept disarmament of their armed forces, he said.

To Be Banned in Saanich

Saanich Police Chief W. A. Pearson plans to ban unicycles like these as too dangerous for use on Saanich roads because they have no brakes, handlebars, fenders or lights and aren't covered by present bylaws. These two Victoria youths, Garry Bentham, 14, of 2614 Avebury Avenue, and Tom Glenn, 15, of 1540 Lionel Street, ride the unicycles to classes at Lansdowne Junior High School.—(Colonist photo.)

Shopping Area Plan Dropped

Plan for a major shopping centre including a Simpson-Sears department store in the Saanich "panhandle" has been abandoned.

But the news didn't surprise Reeve George Chatterton who said last night he never expected the shopping centre would be built.

OFFER FOR SALE

Ker & Stephenson Ltd. has been instructed to offer for sale as a unit the 17 acres bounded by Richmond, Newton, Townley and the city border held by Simpson-Sears Ltd. and Camp Victoria Shopping Plaza Ltd., Col. B. Russell Ker confirmed yesterday.

ALL ALONG

"I thought all along the land would not be suitable for a shopping centre," Reeve Chatterton said. "There are no major roads going through the area and it is becoming a little backwater."

"The crossroads pattern of the future will be farther north."

Plan to build the department

Air Marshal Coming Here

Air Vice-Marshal H. M. Carswell, air officer commanding, RCAF training command, Winnipeg, will visit Canadian Services College at Royal Roads this week. He is being accompanied on a western tour of training units and stations by Group Capt. A. H. Middleton.

Dickens Dinner Features Films

Color movies of Charles Dickens' England—Kent and southeast counties—will be a highlight of the annual Dickens Yellowship Saturday in the Dominion Hotel.

Daffodils Earlier But So Is Easter

Saanich daffodils will be "a year," G. A. Vantreight pointed out. "It's as early as you can get it. So I think we'll be all right."

In a few sheltered spots the daffodils are coming up, but not too much in the open fields.

Discolored Water at Home? Blame It on Main Flushing

Annual flushing of Victoria and Esquimalt water mains will start today, and residents have been informed that "temporary but harmless" discoloration of water may result.

In cases where sediment might have a harmful effect, however, such as in commercial laundering, film-processing and bottling, users have been asked to notify the city engineer if they want special warning when mains are to be flushed in their neighborhoods.

The flushing, scheduled to start in James Bay, will take about five weeks. A crew will open hydrants to flush the mains, accelerating the flow of water and often reversing it so that it will pick up sediment.

Politics

Teachers Deny Charges

B.C. Teachers Federation yesterday denied charges by Greater Victoria school board chairman W. C. Gelling that it is playing politics with the Chant report on education.

Federation secretary-treasurer Charles Ovang said the BCTF is concerned that the recommendations of the Chant report may be implemented "piecemeal and thus destroy its overall effect."

NOT ENOUGH TIME

He said the Chant report taken as a whole calls for fundamental changes in the whole education program and added there has not been enough time for serious study of all the implications of the voluminous report.

"Piecemeal legislation is obviously not the answer to the problem," said Mr. Ovang. He added it was on this basis that the BCTF recommended to the government recently that legislation arising out of the report be delayed.

DEEP POLITICS

Mr. Gelling said the assumed teachers were seeking a delay because they didn't want salary negotiations on a provincial basis instead of individual districts. He added: "Sometimes I wish teachers would drop politics and get back into teaching."

Mr. Ovang said the chairman's assumption was incorrect, and added, "In fact, the federation has offered to try out provincial bargaining as recommended by the Chant report on an experimental basis."

NO PLANS

But no actual building plans were announced, and subsequently another shopping-centre development—Hillside Plaza Shopping Centre—was planned nearby by other interests.

Woodward Stores Ltd. announced last year it would have a department store at Hillside Plaza, but president C. N. Woodward said recently that this plan appeared to be "toppling."

Indian Plot Unearthed In Oak Bay

An Indian burial ground more than 100 years old was unearthed last week by Oak Bay municipal workers while excavating near Oak Bay Boat-house.

Don Abbott, assistant provincial anthropologist, said he found one skull and bits of three others along with several bones.

A workman told Mr. Abbott he saw four skulls, but excavating equipment had disturbed and destroyed them.

"The graves must have been very shallow," Mr. Abbott said.

The burial site was probably a small family plot and not a village graveyard, he said.

Alberni Fires Quelled

Attempts Made to Burn B.C. Health, Welfare Cars

ALBERNI—Apparently deliberate attempts to put the torch to two provincial government cars here late Tuesday are being investigated by RCMP.

Both vehicles were damaged when fires started in the upholstery, and police believe the case may be linked with an earlier incident in which an attempt was made to destroy a policeman's private car where it was parked in a space usually occupied by vehicles of the social welfare branch.

FROM COURTENAY

One of the vehicles damaged Tuesday is operated by provincial public health nurse Norma Guttormson of Alberni and the other is used by the regional welfare department supervisor from Courtenay.

The policeman's car was discovered with a fuse leading into the gasoline tank. The end of the fuse was charred, indicating it had been ignited but went out.

Within 20 minutes fires in the provincial vehicles came within 20 minutes of each other and both were extinguished by Alberni Fire Department.

Miss Guttormson said last night she does not believe the actions of an arsonist were directed at her but at the government.

Both provincial vehicles were parked on Elizabeth Street about a block apart when the fires broke out.

START THEMSELVES Alberni Fire Chief Sandy Gilmour said of the fires, "They didn't start themselves."

Police believe they may have been set by someone with a grievance against one of the two government departments concerned.

A special investigator for the RCMP is expected to leave Victoria for Alberni today to delve further into the case.

Police are continuing their spot checks.

Highways Minister Gagliardi will wind up the debate at an evening sitting in what is expected to be a heated reply to his critics.

Gagliardi Speaks Tonight

Final day of the Throne speech debate begins in the legislature at 2 p.m. today, when speakers are Alan Macfarlane (Lib.-Oak Bay) and Les Nimick (CCF-Cranbrook).

Highways Minister Gagliardi will wind up the debate at an evening sitting in what is expected to be a heated reply to his critics.

Premier Bennett will deliver the budget for the coming year at Friday's sitting.

United Church

Probe B.C. Welfare Presbytery Urges

Victoria Presbytery of the United Church of Canada last night passed a resolution urging the B.C. government to investigate provincial welfare services.

Motion was made in support of three Greater Vancouver presbyteries who recently appealed to the government after obtaining 2,139 signatures on petitions expressing alarm at persistent reports of inadequacies in welfare services.

Several members expressing doubt about the resolution and whether inadequacies did exist in social welfare were asked by the meeting chairman, Rev. G. L. Gilling, if they were condemning or condoning the resolution.

One member suggested the resignation of Ruby McKay as head of child welfare in B.C. was reason enough for the resolution.

The resolution was put to the meeting by Dr. D. B. Sparling, chairman of the presbytery's evangelism and social services committee.

Chest Spurned

'Sally Ann' Rejects Proposal

The Salvation Army in Victoria has turned thumbs down on a suggestion that it join the united appeal planned by the Community Chest of Greater Victoria.

"In places across Canada where we are affiliated with the Chest I think we would be glad to get out of it," Brig. C. J. Milley said last night. "We can raise more money on our own."

He was commenting on plans to "invite" the Salvation Army and the Red Cross to join in the revamped Community Chest.

PROVEN OVER YEARS

"We proved that over the years," Brig. Milley continued. "We proved that here in Victoria." We joined with the Chest in '43 and '44 and the most we got in either year was about $7,100.

"In 1945, after the Chest failed to get its objective, we went out with an objective of $30,000 and raised $31,900."

"Why should we go back to that sort of setup? We are not interested."

POLICY OPPOSED

Salvation Army policy set by the Toronto headquarters is opposed to participation in Chest or United Appeal drives, he said.

"We have been approached on several occasions to join the Chest, but we are not interested," Brig. Milley added. Similar approaches have been made to the Victoria Red Cross in the past three years and have been rejected.

Since 1945, the year the organization withdrew from the Chest, the Salvation Army has never failed to reach its objective in annual appeals, he said.

SUPPORT HIGH

Public support is so high that the Victoria Salvation Army usually sets its appeal target below the actual budget requirements, Brig. Milley said.

Last year's budget was $46,808. The appeal target was set at $42,500 and $44,193.19 was donated. The Victoria division has a small credit at national headquarters which raised the final figure to $44,201.19.

This year the Salvation Army is appealing for a record total of $245,000 which includes $200,000 needed for construction of the planned Matson Sunset Lodge for elderly persons.

The drive will begin May 1.

Car Club To Choose

Annual meeting and election of officers of the Victoria Automobile Club will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Empress Hotel. Guest speaker will be B.C. motor vehicle supervisor George Lindsay.

Chamber Picks San Francisco

San Francisco is the target of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce annual "goodwill tour" April 8-16.

Tour chairman Ira Hill said the "tourists" will be based in San Francisco, making trips to surrounding areas to publicize Victoria.

Cities to be visited include Eugene and Portland, Ore., and Woodland, Sacramento and Redding, Calif.

Seen in Passing

Frank Ford enthusiastic about the proposal to allow artists to paint pictures on the Causeway during the tourist season.

A resident of Edmonton, Mr. Ford has been expanding the winters in Victoria for 15 years.

Bill Simmons, a native of Holland, saying he thinks the plan of the Victoria Society of Artists to paint and sell works on the Causeway is a wonderful idea.

Bill Simmons suggesting that tourists might be treated to something more original than dockside painters.

Marge Pride saying there is a wealth of subjects to paint around the inner harbor, so why not have artists on the Causeway.

James Norman expressing the view that more shipping should be encouraged to use the inner harbor to stimulate the tourist trade.

THE BETTER HALF: Who wears the pants in the homes of politicians? This exchange should let you in on the secret.

"They tell me I put my glasses on and took them off 50 times while talking last night," said Lands Minister Ray Williams.

"I bet I know who told you," said CCF leader Robert Strachan.

"You're right," said Mr. Williams with a grin.

"I know," said Mr. Strachan. "The same thing happens to me."

WRONG ANSWER: A member of the traffic branch of the local constabulary flagged an errant motorist over to the side of the road after a brief chase.

"Why didn't you pull over?" asked the cop. "Didn't you see my flashing light or hear the siren?"

"Oh, sure," replied the driver, "but I thought you were an ambulance."

We hope he changes his story before he gets into court.

HELPFUL HINTS: Mrs. Camille Mather, the new CCF member for Delta, told the mostly male members yesterday that a well-wisher had sent her a note.

It said that if when dealing with high officials, one was nervous just picture them in their underwear.

"I don't know whether this would make me more nervous or less nervous," she said.

THE GREATEST MAN: People have been going up to Mrs. Camille Mather ever since she was elected as the CCF member for Delta last September to ask: "Aren't you overwhelmed at meeting and dealing with all these important people?"

"With all due respect, I am not," she told the legislators during her maiden speech yesterday. "The most important man I know I am married to."

Her husband is Vancouver Sun columnist Barry Mather.

VOX POPULI: Say one thing for Premier Bennett, he can always see the bright side.

The way he tells it, his office is being deluged with calls from Liberals saying they are joining Social Credit immediately. And it's all because of the fiery attack by Liberal Gordon Gibson.

Would he care to name some names? Ah, that is the question he has been waiting for.

"Yes, my friend," said the premier. "Why Cecil Steele, that great Liberal who was an MLA for Omineca, told me just this afternoon that he's joined Social Credit just because of this Gibson attack."

Swedish Style Pancakes A Breakfast Surprise

Let's take off for Sweden to have breakfast! Wouldn't it be great fun to do just that—but most of us have to settle for breakfast in our own sunny kitchens. It is possible, though, to take an imaginary trip and eat a very real Swedish breakfast right at home. To do that, simply serve these Swedish Pancakes for platter to Swedish folks.

This delicious Canadian version of platter is made using your favorite pancake mix. The batter is thin and rich and is baked in a special platter pan. If you don't happen to have such a pan, bake the tiny pancakes on a regular, lightly greased griddle instead. After the pancakes are baked to a golden turn, serve seven of them overlapped in a circle on each individual plate. Sprinkle the platter circle with a dusting of confectioners' sugar and centre with sparkling lingonberry preserves. Lingonberries are traditionally served with pancakes in Sweden, but raspberry or blackberry preserves are good substitutes, if lingonberries are not available.

One of these mornings surprise the family with platter that are so tender they melt in your mouth. Accompany them with pungent cups of Swedish coffee and you have an elegant Swedish treat for the whole family.

PLATTAR (SWEDISH PANCAKES)

(Makes 6 servings)

One and one quarter cups milk, 1 egg, 1 cup pancake mix, 1 tablespoon melted butter, or margarine. Confectioners' sugar. Lingonberry preserves (or raspberry or blackberry preserves).

Combine milk and egg. Add pancake mix, stirring lightly until blended. Stir in melted butter. Melt a little butter in each depression of platter pan. Pour about 1 tablespoon batter in each depression. Bake to a golden brown, turning only once. Serve 7 pancakes overlapped in a circle on each plate. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar and serve with lingonberry preserves.

Note: Pancakes can be baked on a hot, lightly greased griddle if platter pan is not available.

Plan Party At Gallery

The regular meeting of the YMYWCA was held recently with Mrs. W. Munroe in the chair.

It was decided that a coffee party would be held at the art gallery on Monday, March 20 with Mrs. Alan Macfarlane and Mrs. George Curtis as co-conveners. Mrs. Ross McNeely and Mrs. G. B. Buffam will be in charge of the home cooking, and Mrs. Dickie and Mrs. George Gregory, tea.

Mrs. George Wheaton of the membership committee, introduced two new members, Mrs. L. Walton and Mrs. G. E. Burral.

Your Problems By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: We have in our office the world's champion cigaret moocher. He claims he doesn't want to buy cigarets because he's determined to stop smoking. By actual count on Friday he bummed 11 cigarets off seven of us.

Basically, he's a fairly decent guy—big hearted and all that. Nobody wants to rough him up with a direct insult, but we all figure if he can afford to drive a classy sports car he ought to be able to buy himself cigarets. Furthermore, we would like the privilege of selecting our own charities. Please suggest a Landers plan of action. We are—DESPERATE.

Dear Desperate: In unity find strength. Band together. From now on when the Magnificent Moocher asks for a cigaret the stock answer (delivered with an appropriate note of paternalistic interest) should be "Absolutely not. I'm going to help you to stop smoking."

Dear Ann Landers: My problem is a niece. Whenever I invite my husband's sister to our home, her daughter Irma thinks she's invited, too.

Irma is married but her husband travels a lot so she has a good bit of spare time on her hands. Also she has more brass than a government mule. You'd think a grown woman would have some friends and interests of her own, but she hasn't.

If we want to play bridge there's always one too many. I've had to cut a small steak in half, stretch the soup and pretend like I didn't want a piece of pie so Irma could have mine. I hate to hurt my sister-in-law's feelings but I'm sick of having her daughter come over here uninvited. Please tell me what to do.—IMPOSED ON.

Dear Imposed: When next you invite your sister-in-law over, tell her the invitation does not include the government mule—I mean her daughter.

Irma has been taking advantage of both you and her

On the Oriana

'Ergonomic' the Latest Word In Interchangeable Cutlery

It might interest Victoria housewives to know that the cutlery used on the P & O—Orient 42,000-ton liner Oriana, which passed the Victoria waterfront last week—is of the new "ergonomic" design. Mr. Robert Welsh, a prominent young English designer, conceived his revolutionary idea in cutlery design in his 18th century workshop at The Mill, Chipping Campden, in the Cotswolds. Welsh designs and makes cutlery in the "ergonomic manner"—i.e. cutlery moulded to the human hand. A former student of the Royal College of Art, he had great success with his work in silver. His challenge in this instance was to create beauty and elegance, but at the same time fulfill all functional requirements.

He designed and re-designed the knife first of all until it satisfied his requirements. He then designed the rest of the set, using the knife as his guiding factor. He found that, because of the nature of the design, fish and table forks and dessert and soup spoons could be interchanged, thus reducing the number of pieces required.

The knives have a 2 1/4 inch blade, instead of the conventional 4 1/2 and 5 1/2 inch; forks, only three but useful prongs and because of the wide gap between are particularly easy to clean.

The Oriana's cutlery is of stainless steel, stronger than silver plate, easier to maintain and does not need re-plating.

The firm of Mappin and Webb, London's famous cutlery manufacturers, was commissioned to fabricate the ship's supply of 65,200 pieces, each bearing the name Oriana. It comprises 14,000 table forks, 12,000 teaspoons, 10,000 table knives and dessert spoons, 5,000 coffee spoons, 4,000 fruit forks, fruit knives and fish knives, 1,000 jam spoons, 800 butter knives and 400 pickle forks.

Joy Lees Wasson Wed In St. Luke's Chapel

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lambrick, wed recently by Rev. T. D. B. Ragg in an afternoon ceremony in the chapel of St. Luke's Church, are now honeymooning in California.

The bride, the former Miss Joy Lees Wasson, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Wasson, Beasborough Apartment, 906 McClure Street.

She was given in marriage by her father, and wore for the ceremony a navy blue costume suit with white flowered hat, white gloves and pearl jewelry. Her corsage was of white hyacinths and red roses. Miss Libby Book was the bride's attendant, and wore a suit and hat of cerise wool with beige accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Lambrick, 4137 Torquay Drive, had Mr. Stewart Reid as best man.

Following the ceremony, guests were received at the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Watson, 3460 Bonair Place, where daffodils, iris, tulips and plum blossoms set an attractive scene.

When they return, Mr. and Mrs. Lambrick will make their home at 4111 Torquay Drive.

Dr. Henrietta Anderson Discusses Chant Report

The Chant report was given almost full approval by Dr. Henrietta Anderson, for many years prominent in the educational field, when she addressed the annual meeting of the Local Council of Women yesterday morning.

Dr. Anderson read the report and picked out certain sections to give, as usual, some witty comment.

In particular, Dr. Anderson, long time advocate for vocational facilities, applauded the suggestion to institute such schools.

"The Good Lord never made such a mistake as to fill the world with only budding doctors, lawyers and dentists and besides there are many other important jobs to do," she said.

UNPREPARED

The non academic student often leaves school frustrated and quite unprepared for any trade or craft, Dr. Anderson stated.

The vocational school would remedy this situation but the great stumbling block to these separate schools would be the cost. Dr. Anderson pointed out that an academic education is the cheapest and may explain why so many students are herded toward a university education. Machinery and tools for trade schools cost money. Miss J. Ethel Bruce in reporting on international affairs told the meeting that 12 European refugee camps had been closed as a result of funds sent from Canada.

Miss Lottie Bowron, citizenship and immigration convener gave details on Chinese and native Indians in B.C.

A report on health and welfare was given by Mrs. O. M. Prentice.

RESOLUTIONS

Resolutions supported and to be sent to the provincial Government ask the prohibition of use of X-ray shoe fitting machines; that the matter of air pollution be studied by appropriate authorities; that the penalty be increased for minors purchasing liquor in a Government Liquor store; that a single person receiving social assistance of $66 be allowed to retain $10 from any sum they earn in any month and that married couples receiving $103.80 be allowed $20; support any request from municipal governments for funds for an extended program of subsidized home-maker and housekeeper.

That section 55 of the Public Schools Act be amended by adding the word "Spouse" after the words "Owner, Elector" in qualifications for nomination and election of school trustees; that consideration be given to increase grants to school boards and other groups offering English classes for new Canadians; that ways and means be explored by which fees for English classes might be waived for indigent students.

Chatterton:

Reeve George Chatterton said last night Progressive Conservatives must be prepared in the forthcoming Esquimalt-Saanich by-election to combat "the socialist pap that is being spewed from the left."

He told Young Progressive Conservatives here "a clear dividing line" now exists between the political right and left, and that he considered the Liberal party had swung Mr. Chatterton, addressed an sharply left, "rocking the CCF off its seat."

BORN AND BRED

Mr. Chatterton, who described himself as a Conservative "born and bred," said the party's campaign in the federal by-election should be brief and intensive. "We must stand up for individual initiative against the socialist pap that is being

Flu Easing In Britain

LONDON (Reuters)—Fears that Britain's influenza epidemic might reach the proportions of the epidemics of 1957-58 and 1959 dwindled Wednesday. Ministry of health sources expressed guarded optimism that the epidemic is abating.

White Phones Irk Poles

Dial B for Battle

WARSAW (AP)—A provincial Polish town is in turmoil with local Communist aristocracy battling over the latest status symbol—a white telephone.

The Communist Party organ Trybuna Ludu gave this account of the battle in the town identified only as "B."

The director of communications received a shipment of 40 white telephones to be distributed in his area.

But there were far more people who were deeply convinced that their positions and social rank entitled them to the white "luxury" telephone.

The town began to seethe. Telephone calls began . . . the director was bombarded not only by the most important citizens but what is worse, by their wives. The possession of a white telephone became a matter of honor, ambition, prestige and importance.

The beleaguered director finally set up a special commission to decide on the allocation of the telephones and all but one were distributed.

"The debate over its distribution is still going on," the paper said. Many important people, however, did not get the badge of importance.

Trybuna Ludu said a number of disappointed wives have threatened their husbands with divorce and some dissatisfied local officials have carried the matter to influential friends in ministries in Warsaw.

"The director is a shadow of his former self," the paper added. "He avoids acquaintances. He has lost his appetite. He has nightmares in which he sees local aristocrats demanding telephones and threatening him with the most dire consequences. He was last seen leaving town 'on an official trip.'"

Teacher at Presbytery

Religion in Schools Termed Worthless

Teaching religion in schools was termed worthless by a school teacher at the Victoria Presbytery of the United Church last night.

Saanich school teacher Ken Buffam, a Sunday School supervisor, said he thought churches lost out on teaching religion in schools long ago. "I feel Sunday schools are doing good work but speaking as a teacher and a parent, teaching religion in schools is worthless," he said.

He was speaking against a resolution introduced by Rev. H. P. Davidson calling on the government, through the presbytery's executive conference, to incorporate further teaching of religion in schools. The resolution was passed.

Rev. Laura Butler said a revised Bible study course was being planned. This would be taught in church and not in school time, but some credits toward education would be given for completing the course, she said.

Li-Col. J. E. Brawn, B.C. Area supply and transport officer, this week inspected 155 Company, Royal Canadian Army Service Corps, at the Bay Street Armory, in connection with a trans-Canada RCASC competition for the Commonwealth Shield proficiency award. The unit placed second last year.

Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich will propose to the municipal committee, he said yesterday, that it recommend addition of two probation officers to the staff of the juvenile and family court only if the provincial government pays the salary of one of them.

A court supervisory committee Monday called for a staff of three probation officers instead of one for the eight-month-old court and also suggested engaging two more stenographers.

MURKIN AGREES But Reeve Chatterton said he thought the province should have part of the additional expenses. Reeve George Murdoch of Oak Bay had similar views.

The attorney general, he said, had agreed when the court was established that the province would pay the salary of another probation officer if and when one was needed.

SPECIAL COURT Reeve Murdoch said he also would suggest that legislation be sought enabling juveniles charged with ordinary traffic offences to be tried by a magistrate in a weekly special traffic court.

This system, he said, would not only "remove the stigma of delinquency" from children caught riding bicycles without lights, for instance, but would greatly reduce the load on the juvenile court.

The Soviet Union, he said, is producing about 1,000,000 tons of asbestos a year and is underselling Canadian producers in the Western European market, "presumably as a matter of policy."

LEAD, ALUMINUM In the last two or three years, said V. E. Wansbrough, president and managing director of the Canadian Metal Mining Association, lead, aluminum and some other minerals from behind the Iron Curtain have made their appearance periodically on the markets of the West. They were always priced to undercut the Western product.

Mr. Wansbrough did not think economic aggression was involved. Russia from time to time simply has needed foreign exchange, "and anything she can sell to get foreign exchange she will sell it."

AGGRESSIVE ATTACK He warned, however, that Russia could carry the practice further, "as an actual matter of deliberate policy and as an aggressive attack on our markets if they so desired—and I think they are in a position to do that."

ANOTHER SUBMISSION In another submission to the committee, the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association called for creation of an economic advisory council to "engage in and report on all aspects of Canadian economic problems." Its members would be drawn from industry, labor, agriculture, the universities and government.

Both associations called for tax incentives to spur expansion and development.

Americans Make Bid For Planner's Post

Picking a successor to Brian Wiesman as planning director of the Capital Region Planning Board is likely to take several weeks, chairman of the board said yesterday.

Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich said the board is reviewing "about eight" applications, some from planners in the U.S., and arranging interviews "may take a little time."

Mr. Wiesman will take a new planning post in Vancouver April 1.

Pollution of water, food, air and soil will be discussed during the 13th annual meeting of the B.C. Natural Resources Conference here March 1 to 3.

The discussion will be highlighted by a speech by C. C. Strachan, director of the Summerland research station, on pollution of soil and food.

The conference will cover resources and the influences of material resources such as lumber, fisheries, mining and agriculture upon the average British Columbian.

Plans for co-ordinated action by federal and provincial departments and agencies in a national emergency are being discussed at HMCS Naden.

On opening day yesterday, 10 delegates attended affairs of James Arthur Knight, 7761 nuclear weapons, civil emergency, passing stop sign, $10.

Garden Notes

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

There are very few plants in our gardens which provide so much color for so little money as the hardy annuals. A few packets of seeds costing only pennies can keep your garden ablaze with color throughout the summer and fall and provide plenty of cut flowers for the house to boot.

While a greenhouse or coldframe can be quite a help in getting your plants off to an early start, they are not really necessary for most of the annual flowers. These plants need no coddling and you can have first-class results simply by sowing your seeds in the open in March or early April.

The directions on the seed packets usually tell you to sow directly on the flowering site. Personally, I prefer to raise my plants in a small seed bed, sowing the seeds in rows, thinning them in due course and finally transplanting them to the spot where they are to bloom.

The hardy annuals are not at all fastidious as to soil; they need no rich manuring for fertilizing—in fact, they bloom somewhat more profusely, as a rule, on poorer soil. However, they do demand lots of sunshine and the texture of the soil should be loose and friable, as tiny seedlings cannot push through a surface which has become caked and encrusted. The easiest way to accomplish this is to mix damp peat moss plentifully with the top two inches of soil.

Because of our summer droughts, I grow most of my row crops—both flowers and vegetables—in shallow trenches, to make it easier and less wasteful of water when I irrigate them with the hose.

However, when you grow hardy annuals from seed, the plants will be transplanted out of the seed bed long before the dry weather arrives, and the problem in the spring, when the seeds are germinating, is often too much rather than too little rain. For this reason, I like to make my seed bed a little higher than the surrounding soil, so there is no danger of it becoming heavy and sodden and covered with puddles while the seedlings are still babies.

You don't need a big seed bed for this job—you can raise a surprising number of seedling plants in a plot no bigger than your dinner table. Moreover, you can keep your little raised bed working all year round, starting perennials and annuals from seeds during the summer and rooting cuttings under jam jars.

Two things are important in preparing the seed bed—it must be firm and it must be perfectly level, so there will be no hollows or depressions to catch and hold rain, and down the seedlings. This is accomplished by raking and treading, alternately and over and over again, until the top of the bed is like a billiard table. With this accomplished, make your furrows and go ahead and sow your flower seeds just as you would vegetables.

To get my seeds off to a good start, I water my seed furrows with a weak fertilizer solution. This is made by dissolving one level tablespoonful of some high-test, highly soluble fertilizer in a gallon of water and pouring it into the furrows very slowly and easily to avoid pitting or washing out the contours of the seed drills.

When the "planter's punch" has drained away, sow the seeds—very thinly—and cover lightly with fine soil or coarse sand. Tamp down the covering with the back of the rake, and mark each row with a neat plant label.

Frozen Out

Navy Saves Starving Geese

SHELburne, N.S. (UPI)—The Royal Canadian Navy answered the call of the wild goose and dispatched a helicopter with much needed supplies to feed starving flocks forced out of a sanctuary by an extreme cold spell.

Thousands of wild geese were forced out of the Port Joli Sanctuary and new feeding stations had to be set up in nearby marshland by conservation officials.

The navy at the Shearwater naval air station assigned a helicopter to ferry supplies of grain to the new feeding areas. Prior to the arrival of the helicopter the grain had to be carried for nearly a mile on the backs of conservation officials and forest rangers who cut down through 18 inches of ice to open up the new stations.

Dr. Harrison Lewis, a leading conservation official said that at least 1,500 birds alighted on the new stations last night although several more thousand geese in the Port Joli Sanctuary were still unaccounted for.

Lewis said some of the birds may still be somewhere in Yarmouth County while some may have flown to New Hampshire.

Hollywood Today

Guy Latest Tax Exile

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Guy Madison is the latest Hollywood actor to set up a tax-happy residence in Switzerland. Guy plans to be abroad for two years—he recently completed a movie in Yugoslavia. Next on his work schedule is "The Invincible Macedonian" in Rome. Estranged wife Sheilah Connolly told me at 20th-Fox, where she is testing that there is no chance whatsoever of a reconciliation with Guy—and with him living abroad, this seems to be it.

Brad Dillman—so good in his latest thriller, "Circle of Deception"—is having some trouble at home because his pictures, mostly for Darryl Zanuck, are made abroad—and his wife and children prefer to live in Hollywood. Unless she is prepared to travel, a girl should think twice before marrying an actor.

Pity Dirk Bogarde: He had to sell his beautiful house in the English countryside, because a girl's school moved in next door! Can you imagine a movie star living next door to 300 girls?

It might have been the weather that discouraged Judy Garland about living permanently in London. After her Hollywood stint in "Judgment at Nuremberg," Judy will make profitable appearances all over America, at $10,000 per evening. And there's also a big musical coming up for her on Broadway. Personally I'd like to see Judy play Nancy Sykes in "Oliver," the musical version of "Oliver Twist," an enormous hit in London, which David Merrick is bringing to Broadway in the fall.

Dorothy Malone and husband Jacques Bergerac are doing well in the career department. Dorothy stars in the first two-hour-long Route 66 TV shows. Jacques is up for the lead in Columbia's Jules Verne story, "Valley of the Dragons." Dorothy is also at the head of the line for a starring role in "Two for Texas"—which is where she comes from.

"The most disgusting thing that can happen to a marriage," puffed Ernie Kovacs, "is to have a wife (Eddie Adams) who eats blackstrap molasses, wheat germ, and a plate of yeast cakes every morning for breakfast." "Not as bad," countered Eddie on the set of "Lower Come Back," "as having a husband who wakes up at 5 every morning and promptly lights up a big fat cigar in bed."

When I interviewed Jackie Chan in London prior to the wedding of Princess Margaret and Anthony Armstrong-Jones, she told me she would like to make a movie in Hollywood. Ross Hunter has been looking at her "World of Suzie Wong" footage, at my suggestion for a top role in his "Flower Drum Song." In "Suzie," Jackie had to look plain. In real life she has a delicate, flowerlike quality and a soft, attractive, speaking voice. I hope she lands in the movie.

Neither Cary Grant nor Sir Laurence Olivier are set for Sam Spiegel's "Lawrence of Arabia." I haven't seen the script, says Cary. And he's going to be busy elsewhere at the time of production.

Incidentally, I'm getting tired of the guest-star careers in recent movies. I actually think that "Pepe" would have been better just with the great Cantinflas, and minus such stars as Kim Novak, Greer Garson, Ring Crosby, etc. While it worked in "Around the World in 80 Days," it somehow doesn't for "Pepe" and other star-camouflaged pictures.

But "Pepe" has one great fan—Edward G. Robinson's granddaughter Francesca (Eddie's in the picture, too, by the way). The little girl attends a convent, but every weekend her father, Eddie Jr., calls for her and takes her to a movie and dinner in a restaurant. And my report from Francesca, who does a killing imitation of her grandfather, is that "Pepe" is her nomination for the best film of the year.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Flesch

The other day my daughter Katie showed me a story she had written for school. It was about something terrible that had happened during the night. "Then," Katie continued, "my mother woke me up and it was all just a dream."

I told her it should be "my mother waked me up" and she changed woke to waked. Two days later she came home from school and said the teacher woke and waked were right; she'd insisted her daddy was a everybody else agreed except writer and said it should be me.

Failure at First

I tried to explain that waked was right for the transitive verb with an object ("my mother waked me up"), while woke was right for the intransitive verb without an object ("I woke up"), but didn't get anywhere. So I went and got a dictionary to prove my point. I have quite a collection of dictionaries and reference books around the house. I went through three ordinary desk dictionaries and was amazed to find they all said there was no difference between waked and woke.

Good Old Fowler

Then it came to me. I'd forgotten to look in the most obvious place of them all—Fowler's Dictionary of Modern English Usage, the classic handbook on writing. Sure enough, there it was. Good old Fowler, "Wake," he wrote, "has the past tense waked, rarely (and that usually in transitive sense) waked." That was fine, but I was still a little bothered by Fowler's lukewarm "usually." Now that I'd found some endorsement in a book on usage, I turned to the latest American usage book, Bergen Evans' Dictionary of Contemporary American Usage. Maybe he would back me up one hundred per cent. Here is what I found:

"There is a theory that the past tense form woke is preferable for an actual waking up when the verb does not have an object, as 'in he woke at six, and the form waked when the verb does have an object, as 'she waked him at six, but this is not borne out in practice.' At that point I gave up.

Congress Sees Flight in Space

WASHINGTON (UPI)—He assiduously worked levers, as he had been taught, watched a flight through space—the recent journey of Ham, the chimpanzee astronaut.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration showed members of the House space committee a motion picture taken of Ham during his 16-minute rocket ride over the Atlantic from Cape Canaveral Jan. 31.

HIGHER, FARTHER

Ham, three-year-old native of Cameroon, Africa, was supposed to go up about 115 miles and out 290 miles. Actually, he went 42 miles higher and 132 miles farther.

The escape rocket two minutes and 17 seconds after the start momentarily subjected Ham to an acceleration force 17 times gravity. It was as though his 37-pound weight had abruptly been raised to 629 pounds.

Up to that moment, Ham displayed total unconcern over his peculiar situation.

Socred Leader Coming

President of the Social Credit Association of Canada, Dr. Robert N. Thompson of Red Deer, will visit Victoria this weekend.

After meeting the Vancouver Island area council in Nanaimo Saturday, he will spend the weekend in Victoria. Monday, he will meet the Social Credit caucus and attend the legislature.

'Not a Mental Home'

Hospital City's Need Says Puzzled Official

One in every 10 people living in Greater Victoria can expect to become a patient in a mental institution at some time during their lives.

This is a "reasonable assumption" for B.C.'s second largest centre of population, says Andrew Chatten, executive director of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association.

WAS PUZZLED

To meet this need, Premier Bennett's confirmation that a new mental hospital would be built soon in this area is welcome, said Mr. Chatten. But he confessed he was puzzled by earlier references to the government's part to a new "mental home" here.

"Without a shadow of doubt we need a mental hospital that would replace the present Colquhoun institution, and I don't mean a new mental home," he said.

LONG LISTS

Mr. Chatten said 24 beds available for acute mental cases in the Royal Jubilee Hospital observation ward have been pressed into service and still there are long waiting lists. All patients requiring long-term treatment must be sent to Essondale or Crease Clinics.

The planned $120,000, 15-bed addition to mental patient facilities at the Jubilee, for which Greater Victoria municipalities have already approved grants amounting to about $40,000, will help the situation somewhat.

Mr. Chatten said he feels the addition should be made larger to meet all community needs, "instead of building another great big institution with separate facilities to serve lower Vancouver Island."

MEET NEEDS

up in the caseload and mental illness grows in the community as a whole. A new mental hospital here would assist welfare agencies in their work, he said.

A "big problem" among old people in Saanich, said welfare administrator Frank Heaton, is providing custodial care in cases where senile men and women become violent. Since they can't be accommodated in rest homes they must be taken to the mainland.

CMHA branch president Harvey Mickelson said the group's centre with its limited resources is completely inadequate to meet the need.

SENDS BACK

Resulting social problems, said Mr. Chatten, often result in a breakdown that sends the patient back.

Howling Mobs Run Riot Ten Die in Indian Strife

JUBBULPORE, India (Reuters)—Thousands of Indians clashed for the third straight day Wednesday in communal strife which has claimed the lives of 10 persons and injured 38 so far.

A curfew was imposed and a city official said "there is panic among the people." Two persons died and houses were burned down Wednesday when a howling mob swept through the streets despite patrols by troops and police.

Eight persons died and many houses were burned to the ground Tuesday night when an acid-throwing, torch-waving crowd surged through sections of the city. Some 308 arrests have been made.

The violence apparently was triggered when two young men from one religious community assaulted a college girl from another. The girl later was found dead.

Castle Heir Goes Broke

Marilyn Mental Patient

NEW YORK (AP)—The Daily News says screen beauty Marilyn Monroe has been undergoing treatment for two months at Payne Whitney psychiatric clinic. Other reports say she was admitted to a hospital this week.

The newspaper says her doctor reported she is making good progress from a "near collapse" that followed her breakup with playwright Arthur Miller.

ROBERT H. FERGUSON POLLOK
... all gone

Can't Pay Judgment Over Cats

DUNCAN — A Cowichan man who 10 years ago owned an 80-room Scottish castle and a six-figure fortune said last night he may seek to have himself declared a bankrupt.

Latest blow to the fortunes of Robert H. Fergusson Pollok came yesterday in the form of a Vancouver court order assessing him $9,440 to replace a Salt Spring Island home rendered uninhabitable during his tenancy by 35 cats and 60 birds.

ONCE WEALTHY
A few days earlier, the once-wealthy descendant of Scottish scions told a reporter, a finance company repossessed his automobile.

Yesterday the man who only a few years ago was driving a plush limousine and investing some $30,000 in the now-defunct professional baseball team in Victoria went out and bought another car—this time for $350.

FILTH, ODOR
Before handing down the assessment Chief Justice Sherwood Lett was told the filth and odor left by the cats and birds in the Salt Spring home would force the owner, New Westminster RCMP Staff Sergeant Geoffrey Emsley, to destroy the house and furniture.

Fergusson Pollok was ordered to pay $8,000 for the house and $1,440 for the ruined furnishings and the owner's coat of an unsuccessful attempt to clean and fumigate the premises.

AT ONE POINT
The court was told at one point that the former tenant of the home could not afford to defend the suit against him.

A B.C. Research Council chemist testified it would be impractical to eliminate the offensive odors from the house and that everything which was polluted would have to be burned.

TEAR HOUSE DOWN
A contractor said it would be necessary to almost tear down the house and rebuild it. "Without going into the nauseating and disgusting detail disclosed by the evidence of reputable witnesses," said Chief Justice Lett, "it would appear that Fergusson Pollok and his wife were out of the house a good deal, but there is no evidence to indicate that the other occupants ever were."

BEAVER POINT
The property at Beaver Point was rented to Fergusson Pollok from Sept. 5, 1958, to Feb. 5, 1959.

Advised of the court's judgment last night Fergusson Pollok said, "I haven't got the money."

Asked if he would launch bankruptcy proceedings, he replied, "that's what it has come to."

EARN LIVING
He said he and his wife are at present trying to earn a living at photography and had opened a studio in Esquimalt.

He said they chose Esquimalt because they could open the studio with a six-month trade licence which cost only $7.50, while "in Victoria they expected me to put up a $20,000 bond."

The couple live a short distance south of Duncan with Mrs. Fergusson Pollok's father, retired automobile mechanic Frederick S. McConachie.

MILL WORKER
Ten years ago Fergusson Pollok, a mill worker, inherited the 80-room, 1,000-year-old Pollok Castle near Glasgow, a large estate including a 40-room country home in Scotland and a six-figure fortune.

He sold the castle, the lands and the 40-room house and moved some of the furniture to a 10-room home at Cobble Hill.

He said yesterday that his inheritance had all been lost on "bad investments."

Power Bill Cuts Little, Late

B.C. will never see drastic cuts in electric bills as result of downstream benefits in the Columbia River project, Lands and Forests Minister Williston told the legislature yesterday. In fact, he said, B.C. consumers will probably have a long wait for even small reduction in power cost because of a series of barriers before the vast scheme is in operation.

Details of the Williston report are on Page 3.

CROSSFIRE ECHOES IN GIBSON DEBATE

Liberal Denies Asking Favors

By PETER BRUTON

Echoes of Liberal MLA J. Gordon Gibson's stinging denunciation of the Social Credit government continued to resound in the legislature yesterday with a new flare-up over charges that the North Vancouver logger had sought and been given special privileges.

Mr. Gibson flatly denied the allegations but Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston didn't actually say he would retract.

"Will my honorable word not be taken in this House?" asked Mr. Gibson.

"You won't take anybody else's," snapped Premier Bennett.

The afternoon session began with Mr. Gibson rising on a point of privilege to deny that he had ever asked for personnel or business favors from Lands and Forests Minister Williston. The minister Tuesday night had charged that he did.

Mr. Williston replied that he had requests from two companies for favors, including one at Blackwater.

"I have not one share in that company," snapped Mr. Gibson.

Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz said that the matter should be dropped. Mr. Gibson had made his statement and members must accept his denial.

'I'm a Member Now!'

"It's one man's word against another's," he said.

CCF leader Robert Sirachan jumped into the act and said: "Go to the minister on behalf of your constituents and it comes up in the House."

"On his own behalf," retorted the premier.

Mr. Williston said that Mr. Gibson had not been a member at the time.

"I'm a member now!" called Mr. Gibson.

"A pretty poor member," interjected Health Minister Eric Martin.

Mr. Williston also hit out at statements by the Liberal MLA that timber company president H. R. MacMillan had accepted a forest management licence on Vancouver Island even though he opposed the granting of any more licences at the Sloan commission hearings.

He said this was true but that Mr. Gibson, in all fairness, should have added that the late Chief Justice Gordon Sloan disagreed with the recommendation and did, in fact, recommend that certain licences be given.

If the Liberal had wanted to oppose the granting of the licence he should have attended public hearings to lodge his objections.

Mr. Williston said the Liberal group had approached him after his attack on Mr. Gibson Tuesday night and said it was not proper to attack a man who was not in the House.

"They quoted May (a parliamentary authority) to me," he said. "I've only been here nine years but I know a little about commonsense and debate is a two-way street."

"I don't have to read May to keep within the bonds of common decency."

Taunts 'Bodyguards'

He referred to the other Liberal members as "bodyguards" for Mr. Gibson, a term which infuriated Liberal leader Ray Perrault.

"This is a reflection on the Liberal group," he said. "Mr. Gibson can look after himself."

Mr. Williston was forced to apologize.

Later in the day Donald Brothers (SC—Rossland Trail) expressed doubt that Mr. Gibson had written his fiery speech which sparked the uproar.

"The lawyers and the judges in Vancouver prepared that speech," boomed Mr. Gibson, referring to the fact that the speech made constant reference to court cases involving Social Credit cabinet ministers.

"Regardless of who prepared it, the Liberals are stuck with it," retorted Mr. Brothers who represents the constituency of former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers.

He said when Mr. Gibson was speaking he read from a script and everytime he strayed away Mr. Perrault would look around and bring him back to the speech.

"In our party there is democracy, nobody knows what I am going to say," Mr. Brothers observed.

"I don't think you know either," came a voice from the opposition.

When Gordon Dowding (CCF—Burnaby) was speaking on the subject later in the afternoon a government member asked if the CCF had written "Gordon's speech."

'Author!' Author!'

Mr. Perrault jumped to his feet in protest.

There were too many references that the Liberals had to have everything ghost-written for them, he said.

This was greeted by loud laughter from the government benches.

"Author, author," cried Premier Bennett.

"Author, author," the backbenchers took up the cry.

Mr. Dowding, who a few minutes earlier had been accused of reading "a tedious and repetitious speech, brought the House down with: 'I think you all know I write my own speeches and they have a ring of authenticity.'"

He slapped out at Mr. Williston for his attack on Mr. Gibson, likening it to "a policy of counter-attack" used by former minister Sommers.

He said if it was improper for Gibson to ask for a concession it was much more improper for the minister to grant such a concession.

"Are we to take it that the minister is granting concessions he should not give?" asked Mr. Dowding. "If he gives them so readily to such day in the Commons."

Crime Soars 30 Per Cent

MONTREAL (UPI)—More than 7,000 charges were laid under the Canadian Criminal Code last year in what police officials have referred to as "the year of the crime wave."

Figures released Wednesday showed a 30 per cent increase in crime last year as compared to 1959.

Censure Bid Fails in U.K.

LONDON (AP)—A Labor party motion of censure over increased charges for Britain's socialized medical services was defeated, 321 to 231, Wednesday in the Commons.

Spy Suspects Jaunty, Cheery

LONDON (CP)—Five persons accused of spying against Britain presented a jaunty air Wednesday as their preliminary hearing went through its second day.

The group appeared relaxed and confident as a Scotland Yard detective told of their arrest and the search of a suburban home the Crown contends they used as communications centre for a spy ring dealing in British naval secrets.

SECRET PHOTOS
Detective Superintendent George Smith told of the arrest of Gordon Arnold Lonsdale, 37, after two civilian admiralty employees handed him a bag containing secret photographs and documents.

Arrested with Lonsdale were Henry Frederick Houghton, 55, and his fiancée Miss Ethel Gee, 46, both civil servants at a naval station at Portland in the south of England. Two others—Peter John Kroger, 50, and his wife, Helen, 47—were picked up at their home in suburban Ruislip.

FACE TRIAL
The five are appearing for preliminary hearing in magistrate's court on charges laid under the Official Secrets Act. The magistrate will decide whether they should face trial.

Part of Wednesday's questioning attempted to uncover the background of Lonsdale who grinned as a lawyer and Superintendent Smith discussed his North American connections.

Lonsdale sat calmly, a book in his hands, as Superintendent Smith described a

'Idiotic' Man Facing Doom in 10 Years

CALGARY (CP)—Man will be faced with obliteration within 10 years unless nuclear disarmament takes place, Dr. H. L. Keenleyside said Wednesday.

The Canadian educator, former diplomat and present chairman of the British Columbia Power Commission, spoke to a university group in his capacity as president of the National Conference for the Control of Radiation Hazards.

Man, as "idiotic" as he is, stands in great danger of exterminating himself if he does not limit the use of the tremendous destructive power available to him, Dr. Keenleyside said.

He credited Howard Green, minister of external affairs, and Prime Minister, Diefenbaker with realizing the dangers of atomic fallout and atomic warfare.

RCMP Crash Aids Accused

DUNCAN—A police magistrate dismissed a charge against a motorist here yesterday after he learned two RCMP vehicles have been in accidents at the same intersection where accused's car was struck.

Joseph Goulet, Pemberton Road, was charged with failing to yield the right-of-way before a collision with a car driven by auto salesman Norman Gardner.

Defence counsel David Williams termed the Craig and Government Street intersection where the crash occurred "a notorious corner."

Under cross-examination an RCMP constable said two police vehicles have been involved in accidents at the intersection in the past two years.

Accused said he stopped at a stop sign on Craig, then

Clue Found in Robbery

COURTENAY—First clue in a $2,500 clothing store robbery here Tuesday has turned up in Nanaimo.

Police say a trench coat taken in the robbery was found in an abandoned stolen car. The 1948 ranchwagon disappeared from the M & G used car lot Monday night in Nanaimo.

Return of the stolen car to Nanaimo by the thieves leads police to believe they may now be on the south part of Vancouver Island or the mainland.

Bill Rickson's Men's Wear lost an estimated 30 suits, 20 coats and other clothing in the break-in.

QUALICUM BEACH—After spending several hours in warm spring sunshine examining the potential of this area as a summer training camp for the B.C. Lions football team, three team executives, Wayne Robinson, Ralph Henderson and Herb Capozzi have returned to Vancouver to give the matter further consideration.

They expressed the view that accommodation facilities here are as good as they are accustomed to, but said the turf in the available playing area at the Qualicum College playing fields and the high school grounds would need to be worked on.

Retary Club members who made the bid to have the Lions come here for training are hopeful a favorable answer will arrive in a few days.

NANAIMO—The CPR vessel Princess Patricia will resume the Vancouver-Nanaimo service at 9 a.m. Feb. 24, company officials announced yesterday.

The ship has been at Yarrow Ltd. in Victoria since being taken out of service two weeks ago when it sustained damage to bottom-plates after running aground in heavy fog at the approaches to Vancouver harbor. Annual overhaul and repainting is also being carried out.

Discolored Water at Home? Blame It on Main Flushing

Annual flushing of Victoria and Esquimalt water mains will start today, and residents have been informed that "temporary but harmless" discoloration of water may result.

In cases where sediment might have a harmful effect, however, such as in commercial laundering, film-processing and bottling, users have been asked to notify the city engineer if they want special warning when mains are to be flushed in their neighborhoods.

The flushing, scheduled to start in James Bay, will take about five weeks. A crew will open hydrants to flush the mains, accelerating the flow of water and often reversing it so that it will pick up sediment.

Politics

Teachers Deny Charges

B.C. Teachers Federation yesterday denied charges by Greater Victoria school board chairman W. C. Gelling that it is playing politics with the Chant report on education.

Federation secretary-treasurer Charles Owens said the BCTF is concerned that the recommendations of the Chant report may be implemented "piecemeal and thus destroy its overall effect."

NOT ENOUGH TIME

He said the Chant report taken as a whole calls for fundamental changes in the whole education program and added there has not been enough time for serious study of all the implications of the voluminous report.

"Piecemeal legislation is obviously not the answer to the problem," said Mr. Owens. He added it was on this basis that the BCTF recommended to the government recently that legislation arising out of the report be delayed.

DROP POLITICS

Mr. Gelling said he assumed teachers were seeking a delay because they didn't want salary negotiations on a provincial basis instead of by individual districts. He added, "Sometimes I wish teachers would drop politics and get back into teaching."

Mr. Owens said the chairman's assumption was incorrect, and added, "In fact, the federation has offered to try out provincial bargaining as recommended by the Chant report on an experimental basis."

Any decision on whether Grade 7 should become part of elementary schools—which Greater Victoria school board planners said is vital to the next three-year building program scheduled to be put to a vote about June—"cannot be lightly made," said Mr. Owens.

END OF GRADE 7

Mr. Owens pointed out it was true the Chant report recommended the change from junior high to elementary be made. He added, however, the report also recommends exams at the end of Grade 7 to determine whether pupils will continue their school in junior technical school rather than in a school with an academic curriculum.

"Apart from cost," said Mr. Owens, "the concept of 'streaming' at the end of Grade 7 needs very serious consideration."

NOT CONVINCED

"There is widespread dissatisfaction and protest in England where pupils are 'streamed' at age 11," he said. "streaming" referred to channelling students to various courses of study such as academic or technical.

United Church

Probe B.C. Welfare Presbytery Urges

Victoria Presbytery of the United Church of Canada last night passed a resolution urging the B.C. government to investigate provincial welfare services.

Move was made in support of three Greater Vancouver presbyteries who recently appealed to the government after obtaining 2,139 signatures on petitions expressing alarm at persistent reports of inadequacies in welfare services.

Several members expressing doubt about the resolution and whether inadequacies did exist in social welfare were asked by the meeting chairman, Rev. G. L. Gillard, if they were condemning or condoning the resolution.

One member suggested the resignation of Ruby McKay as head of child welfare in B.C. was reason enough for the resolution.

The resolution was put to the meeting by Dr. D. B. Sparling, chairman of the presbytery's evangelism and social services committee.

Alberni Fires Quelled

Attempts Made to Burn Two B.C. Welfare Cars

ALBERNI—Apparently deliberate attempts to put the torch to two provincial government cars here late Tuesday are being investigated by RCMP.

Both vehicles were damaged when fires started in the upholstery, and police believe the case may be linked with an earlier incident in which an attempt was made to destroy a policeman's private car where it was parked in a space usually occupied by vehicles of the social welfare branch.

FROM COURTENAY

One of the vehicles damaged Tuesday is operated by provincial public health nurse Norma Gattormson of Alberni and the other is used by the regional welfare department supervisor from Courtenay.

The policeman's car was discovered with a fuse leading into the gasoline tank. The end of the fuse was charred, indicating it had been ignited but went out.

WITHIN 20 MINUTES

Fires in the provincial vehicles came within 20 minutes of each other and both were extinguished by Alberni Fire Department.

Miss Gattormson said last night she does not believe the actions of an arsonist were directed at her but at the government.

Both provincial vehicles were parked on Elizabeth Street about a block apart when the fires broke out.

START THEMSELVES

Alberni Fire Chief Sandy Gilmour said of the fires, "they didn't start themselves."

Police believe they may have been set by someone with a grievance against one of the two government departments concerned.

A special investigator for the RCMP is expected to leave Victoria for Alberni today to delve further into the case.

Chest Spurned

'Sally Ann' Rejects Proposal

The Salvation Army in Victoria has turned thumbs down on a suggestion that it join the united appeal planned by the Community Chest of Greater Victoria.

"In places across Canada where we are affiliated with the Chest I think we would be glad to get out of it," Brig. C. J. Milley said last night. "We can raise more money on our own."

He was commenting on plans to "invite" the Salvation Army and the Red Cross to join in the revamped Community Chest.

PROVEN OVER YEARS

"We proved that over the years," Brig. Milley continued, "We proved that here in Victoria." We joined with the Chest in '43 and '44 and the most we got in either year was about $7,100.

"In 1945, after the Chest failed to get its objective, we went out with an objective of $30,000 and raised $31,900."

"Why should we go back to that sort of setup? We are not interested."

POLICY OPPOSED

Salvation Army policy set by the Toronto headquarters is opposed to participation in Chest or United Appeal drives, he said.

"We have been approached on several occasions to join the Chest, but we are not interested," Brig. Milley added. Similar approaches have been made to the Victoria Red Cross in the past three years and have been rejected.

Since 1945, the year the organization withdrew from the Chest, the Salvation Army has never failed to reach its objective in annual appeals, he said.

SUPPORT HIGH

Public support is so high that the Victoria Salvation Army usually sets its appeal target below the actual budget.

requirements, Brig. Milley said.

Last year's budget was $44,606. The appeal target was set at $42,500 and $44,193.19 was donated. The Victoria division has a small credit at national headquarters which raised the final figure to $44,201.19.

This year the Salvation Army is appealing for a record total of $245,000 which includes $200,000 needed for construction of the planned Matson Sunset Lodge for elderly persons.

The drive will begin May 1.

Chamber Picks San Francisco

San Francisco is the target of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce annual "goodwill tour" April 8-16.

Tour chairman Ira Hill said the "tourists" will be based in San Francisco, making trips to surrounding areas to publicize Victoria.

Cities to be visited include Eugene and Portland, Ore., and Woodland, Sacramento and Redding, Calif.

Tina Verkamp, a native of Holland, saying she thinks the plan of the Victoria Society of Artists to paint and sell works on the Causeway is a wonderful idea.

Bill Simmons suggesting that tourists might be treated to something more original than roadside paintings.

Marge Pride saying there is a wealth of subjects to paint around the inner harbor, on why not have artists on the Causeway.

James Norman expressing the view that more shipping should be encouraged to use the inner harbor to stimulate the tourist trade.

White Phones Irk Poles

Dial B for Battle

WARSAW (AP)—A provincial Polish town is in turmoil with local Communist aristocracy battling over the latest status symbol—a white telephone.

The Communist Party organ Trybuna Ludu gave this account of the battle in the town identified only as "B."

The director of communications received a shipment of 40 white telephones to be distributed in his area.

But there were far more people who were deeply convinced that their positions and social rank entitled them to the white "luxury" telephone.

The town began to seethe. Telephone calls began... the director was bombarded not only by the most important citizens but what is worse, by their wives.

The possession of a white telephone became a matter of honor, ambition, prestige and importance.

The beleaguered director finally set up a special commission to decide on the allocation of the telephones and all but one were distributed.

"The debate over its distribution is still going on," the paper said. Many important people, however, did not get the badge of importance.

Trybuna Ludu said a number of disappointed wives have threatened their husbands with divorce and some dissatisfied local officials have called the matter to influential friends in ministries in Warsaw.

"The director is a shadow of his former self," the paper added. "He avoids acquaintances. He has lost his appetite. He has nightmares in which he sees local aristocrats demanding telephones and threatening him with the most dire consequences."

He was last seen leaving town "on an official trip."

Pollution Debate Scheduled By B.C. Resources Experts

Pollution of water, food, air and soil will be discussed during the 13th annual meeting of the B.C. Natural Resources Conference here March 1 to 3.

The discussion will be highlighted by a speech by C. C. Strachan, director of the Summerland research station, on pollution of soil and food. Between 300 and 400 delegates from all parts of the province are expected to attend the conference, which will be held in the Empress Hotel.

The conference will cover resources and the influences of material resources such as lumber, fisheries, mining and agriculture upon the average British Columbian.

C. W. Naah of the B.C. Power Commission will be chairman of a panel discussion on energy and Prof. W. J. Anderson of UBC will chair a panel discussion on agriculture. G. R. Knight, provincial economist, will speak on the status of the British Columbia citizen.

'New Gardens' Encouraged

DUNCAN—A "new garden" class has been entered in the annual Valley Garden Club contest which last year drew twice as many entries as four years ago.

There were several inquiries and so we thought it would stimulate more interest," said J. W. Parkinson, contest chairman.

The new gardens are eligible to enter if they were started since June 1 last year.

Another classification, started after requests, is the indoor display of flowers in business offices. Judging will take place in April, June and August. Closing date for entries is April 1. Entry forms can be obtained by writing to the club at PO Box 1364.

The entry form states "purpose of the contest is to encourage those who try to improve their homes and places of business, thus making this area a better place to live and work."

Entrants are limited to residents in North and South Cowichan and Duncan.

Last year there were 32 entries, 29 in 1959 and 22 in 1958. Four years ago there were only 17 entries.

$4,000,000 Seen As Hospital Cost

DUNCAN—Architects' estimates of the cost of a proposed new 163-bed Cowichan hospital are expected soon, but meanwhile unofficial estimates place the total as high as $4,000,000.

Construction committee chairman Claude Green told a recent meeting that after estimates are available "it is hoped the plans receive government approval."

Mr. Green also reported:

1. The new hospital is to have a combination steam and hot water heating system for lower operational costs.

2. Private, semi-private, isolation and psychiatric rooms will take about 25 per cent of the hospital's beds.

3. The "meals on wheels" distribution system will be used.

Pass Up Chinatown Court Tells Drinker

DUNCAN—A Cowichan Indian was warned yesterday to stay away from Duncan's Chinatown after RCMP told Magistrate A. C. Sutton they believed that is where he obtained his liquor.

Basil Paul, 44, an interdicted Indian, made his seventh recent appearance on liquor counts before Magistrate Sutton on Tuesday when the court ordered that he be held by police pending the outcome of an effort to trace his source of supply.

Police said yesterday they got on the trail of the supplier but that it petered out in Chinatown, where Paul was frequently seen. They said Paul told them only that he got his liquor from an "unknown white."

"You come too often," the magistrate told Paul. "If you continue coming you will be dealt with severely. I'm going to give you one more chance—keep away from Chinatown." He sentenced Paul to the two days he had already spent in custody.

Bumper-Banging Stops Weak Heart

WHEATON, Ill. (AP)—Pursued by a bumper-banging motorist, Thomas Fitzgerald, 35, collapsed at the wheel of his auto and died of a heart attack.

Fitzgerald had been under medical care for a heart ailment.

His wife said the trouble began when her husband pulled out in front of the other car. She said the other car pulled alongside at a stoplight and its driver harangued them.

She said the light turned green, and the other motorist dropped behind and soon began bumping the rear of the Wheaton couple's car as both vehicles moved down the road.

After three miles of bumper-banging pursuit, Fitzgerald collapsed. His wife seized the wheel, turned off the ignition and guided the car to a stop while the stranger sped away. Authorities ordered a search for the unidentified motorist.

Flood Claims Probe In Inspectors' Hands

DUNCAN—Three building inspectors will investigate flood damage claims made to the Cowichan flood relief fund committee.

Appointed were Fred Newham, Keith Newton and retired inspector E. W. Lee. The appointments were made at the committee's first meeting Tuesday.

Because it was felt that more claims may still be made, the deadline for receiving them was set for Feb. 23.

Primary concern of the inspectors will be structural damage to buildings and silt damage to farm lands.

Secondary consideration will be given to damage to inside furnishings and personal belongings, and compensation for damage to lawns and shrubbery will come last.

ROBERT H.
FERGUSON-POLLOCK
... all gone

Can't Pay Judgment Over Cats

DUNCAN — A Cowichan man who 10 years ago owned an 80-room Scottish castle and a six-figure fortune said last night he may seek to have himself declared a bankrupt.

Latest blow to the fortunes of Robert H. Fergusson-Pollock came yesterday in the form of a Vancouver court order assessing him $9,440 to replace a Salt Spring Island home rendered uninhabitable during his tenancy by 35 cats and 60 birds.

ONCE WEALTHY

A few days earlier, the once-wealthy descendant of Scottish scions told a reporter, a finance company repossessed his automobile.

Yesterday the man who only a few years ago was driving a plush limousine and involving some $30,000 in the now-defunct professional baseball team in Victoria went out and bought another car—this time for $350.

FILTH, ODDOR

Before handing down the assessment Chief Justice Sherwood Lett was told the filth and odor left by the cats and birds in the Salt Spring home would force the owner, New Westminster RCMP Staff Sergeant Geoffrey Emsley, to destroy the house and furniture.

Fergusson-Pollock was ordered to pay $8,000 for the house and $1,440 for the ruined furnishings and the owner's cost of an unsuccessful attempt to clean and fumigate the premises.

AT ONE POINT

The court was told at one point that the former tenant of the home could not afford to defend the suit against him.

A B.C. Research Council chemist testified it would be impractical to eliminate the offensive odors from the house and that everything which was polluted would have to be burned.

TEAR HOUSE DOWN

A contractor said it would be necessary to almost tear down the house and rebuild it.

"Without going into the nauseating and disgusting detail disclosed by the evidence of reputable witnesses," said Chief Justice Lett, "it would appear that Fergusson-Pollock and his wife were out of the house a good deal, but there is no evidence to indicate that the other occupants ever were."

BEAVER POINT

The property at Beaver Point was rented to Fergusson-Pollock from Sept. 3, 1958, to Feb. 3, 1959.

Advised of the court's judgment last night Fergusson-Pollock said, "I haven't got the money."

Asked if he would launch bankruptcy proceedings, he replied, "That's what it has come to."

EARN LIVING

He said he and his wife are at present trying to earn a living at photography and had opened a studio in Esquimalt.

He said they chose Esquimalt because they could open the studio with a six-month lease which cost only $7.50, while "in Victoria they expected me to put up a $500 bond."

The couple live a short distance south of Duncan with Mrs. Fergusson-Pollock's father, retired automobile mechanic Frederick S. McConachie.

MILL-WORKER

Ten years ago Fergusson-Pollock, a mill-worker, inherited the 80-room, 1,000-year-old Pollok Castle near Glasgow, a large estate including a 40-room country home in Scotland, and a six-figure fortune.

He sold the castle, the lands and the 40-room house and moved some of the furniture to a 10-room home at Cobble Hill.

He said yesterday that his inheritance had all been lost on "bad investments."

FLARE-UP RAGES AROUND LIBERAL

Gibson Denies Asking Favors

By PETER BRUTON

Echoes of Liberal MLA J. Gordon Gibson's stinging denunciation of the Social Credit government continued to resound in the legislature yesterday with a new flare-up over charges that the North Vancouver logger had sought and been given special privileges.

Mr. Gibson flatly denied the allegations but Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston didn't actually say he would retract.

"Will my honorable word not be taken in this House?" asked Mr. Gibson.

"You won't take anybody else's," snapped Premier Bennett.

The afternoon session began with Mr. Gibson rising on a point of privilege to deny that he had ever asked for personal or business favors from Lands and Forests Minister Williston. The minister Tuesday night had charged that he did.

Mr. Williston replied that he had requests from two companies for favors, including one at Blackwater.

"I have not one share in that company," snapped Mr. Gibson.

Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz said that the matter should be dropped. Mr. Gibson had made his statement and members must accept his denial.

'I'm a Member Now!'

"It's one man's word against another's," he said.

CCF leader Robert Strachan jumped into the act and said: "Go to the minister on behalf of your constituents and it comes up in the House."

"On his own behalf," retorted the premier.

Mr. Williston said that Mr. Gibson had not been a member at the time.

"I'm a member now!" called Mr. Gibson.

"A pretty poor member," interjected Health Minister Eric Martin.

Mr. Williston also hit out at statements by the Liberal MLA that timber company president H. R. MacMillan had accepted a forest management licence on Vancouver Island even though he opposed the granting of any more licences at the Sloan commission hearings.

He said this was true but that Mr. Gibson, in all fairness, should have added that the late Chief Justice Gordon Sloan disagreed with the recommendation and did, in fact, recommend that certain licences be given.

If the Liberal had wanted to oppose the granting of the licence he should have attended public hearings to lodge his objections.

Mr. Williston said the Liberal group had approached him after his attack on Mr. Gibson Tuesday night and said it was not proper to attack a man who was not in the House.

"They quoted May (a parliamentary authority) to me," he said. "I've only been here nine years but I know a little about common sense and debate is a two-way street."

"I don't have to read May to keep within the bonds of common decency."

Taunts 'Bodyguards'

He referred to the other Liberal members as "bodyguards" for Mr. Gibson, a term which infuriated Liberal leader Ray Perrault.

"This is a reflection on the Liberal group," he said. "Mr. Gibson can look after himself."

Mr. Williston was forced to apologize.

Later in the day Donald Brothers (SC—Rossland-Trail) expressed doubt that Mr. Gibson had written his fiery speech which sparked the uproar.

"The lawyers and the judges in Vancouver prepared that speech," boomed Mr. Gibson, referring to the fact that the speech made constant reference to court cases involving Social Credit cabinet ministers.

"Regardless of who prepared it, the Liberals are stuck with it," retorted Mr. Brothers who represents the constituency of former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers.

He said when Mr. Gibson was speaking he read from a script and everytime he strayed away Mr. Perrault would look around and bring him back to the speech.

"In our party there is democracy, nobody knows what I am going to say," Mr. Brothers observed.

"I don't think you know either," came a voice from the opposition.

When Gordon Dowding (CCF—Burnaby) was speaking on the subject later in the afternoon a government member asked if the CCFer had written "Gordon's speech."

'Author! Author!'

Mr. Perrault jumped to his feet in protest.

There were many references that the Liberals had to have everything ghost-written for them, he said.

This was greeted by loud laughter from the government backbenchers.

"Author, author," cried Premier Bennett.

"Author, author," the backbenchers took up the cry.

Mr. Dowding, who a few minutes earlier had been accused of reading "a tedious, repetitious" speech, brought the House down with: "I think you all know I write my own speeches and they have a ring of authenticity."

He slapped out at Mr. Williston for his attack on Mr. Gibson, likening it to a policy of counter-speech used by former minister Sommers.

He said if it was improper for Gibson to ask for a concession it was much more improper for the minister to grant such a concession.

"As we to take it that the minister is granting concessions he should not give," asked Mr. Dowding. "If he gives them so readily to such a critic of his policies as Mr. Gibson how many more concessions is he giving people who aren't so critical?"

Dowding Raps Gaglardi

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi was accused yesterday of further contempt of court and "certainly contempt of the public" for suggesting that taxpayers should dig into their pockets to pay his $1,000 fine and costs.

Catcalls and jeers punctuated a lengthy rundown on the Gaglardi case by Gordon Dowding (CCF—Burnaby) in the throne speech debate.

"Just wait until tomorrow," called Highways Minister Gaglardi as the CCFer read a lengthy account of the proceedings which saw the minister fined for disobeying a court order.

"At another point in the proceedings the highways minister asked the CCFer, 'Are you Clarence Darrow?'"

SPEAKS TODAY
The minister is due to speak today.

Mr. Dowding said that the minister did not have the courage or forthrightness to appear before the court to give his reasons for returning cash to an American contractor who had done construction work in B.C. There had been a court order forbidding him to do this.

REASON WHY?
The reason he did not want to appear is that he was worried he would be cross-examined, said Mr. Dowding.

At one time during the lengthy review of the case Donald Brothers (SC—Rossland-Trail) protested that Mr. Dowding had been talking on the same subject for so long that Rule 43 forbidding members from being "tedious or repetitious" should be invoked.

SPEAKS WARNS
Another time Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz warned the CCFer not to read his speech.

Mr. Dowding said the minister should have made an explanation of his actions.

"He'll make one," called Premier Bennett.

"We're waiting for you to go to the Supreme Court of Canada," called Tony Gargrave (CCF—Mackenzie).

Power Bill Cuts Little, Late

B.C. will never see drastic cuts in electric bills as result of downstream benefits in the Columbia River project, Lands and Forests Minister Williston told the legislature yesterday. In fact, he said, B.C. consumers will probably have a long wait for even small reduction in power cost because of a series of hurdles before the vast scheme is in operation.

Spy Suspects Jaunty, Cheery

LONDON (CP)—Five persons accused of spying against Britain presented a jaunty air Wednesday as their preliminary hearing went through its second day.

The group appeared relaxed and confident as a Scotland Yard detective told of their arrest and the search of a suburban home the Crown contends they used as communications centre for a spy ring dealing in British naval secrets.

Detective Superintendent George Smith told of the arrest of Gordon Arnold Lonsdale, 37, after two civilian admiralty employees handed him a bag containing secret photographs and documents.

Arrested with Lonsdale were Henry Frederick Houghton, 55, and his fiancée Miss Ethel Gee, 46, both civil servants at a naval station at Portland in the south of England. Two others—Peter John Kroger, 50, and his wife, Helen, 47—were picked up at their home in suburban Ruislip.

FACE TRIAL

The five are appearing for preliminary hearing in magistrate's court on charges laid under the Official Secrets Act. The magistrate will decide whether they should face trial.

Part of Wednesday's questioning attempted to uncover the background of Lonsdale who grinned as a lawyer and Superintendent Smith discussed his North American connections.

Lonsdale sat calmly, a book in his hands, as Superintendent Smith described a

'Idiotic' Man Facing Doom in 10 Years

CALGARY (CP)—Man will be faced with obliteration within 10 years unless nuclear disarmament takes place, Dr. H. L. Keenleyside said Wednesday.

The Canadian educator, former diplomat and present chairman of the British Columbia Power Commission, spoke to a university group in his capacity as president of the National Conference for the Control of Radiation Hazards.

Man, as "idiotic," as he is, stands in great danger of exterminating himself if he does not limit the use of the tremendous destructive power available to him, Dr. Keenleyside said.

He credited Howard Green, minister of external affairs, and Prime Minister Diefenbaker with realizing the dangers of atomic fallout and atomic warfare.
